

Quality education

How well prepared are today's high school graduates?

A PANAX NEWS SERVICE SPECIAL

See editorial and other stories on Page A-6.

There are seniors attending our local high schools this fall who will graduate in June without the ability to balance a checkbook, negotiate a loan or write a simple sentence.

Across the country the national average for college aptitude tests continues on a steady decline. Many colleges and universities have begun remedial reading and writing programs to teach the fundamentals to incoming freshmen.

How well prepared are today's high school graduates to face the world? Are graduates equipped with the simple requirements necessary to secure and retain a job with a high school education? Is a high school diploma a certificate of achievement or a certificate of attendance?

A group of Panax reporters from Macomb and Western Wayne County set out to answer those questions by interviewing local school officials, community leaders and personnel officers at major corporations.

The results of these extensive interviews reveal that many businesses are disappointed with the quality of worker the local high schools are turning out. Educators, on the other hand, are quick to point out that suburban Detroit school districts are ahead of the national average in college aptitude testing.

What the educators fail to add, is that the national average continues on the decline. As test averages continue on the downward spiral nationally for both math and verbal scores, suburban Detroit school systems test scores are either remaining stable or experiencing a slight decline.

Information for this report was furnished by Clarisse Israel of the Wyandotte News Herald, Collette Pollard of Associated Newspapers, Pearl Ahnen, Richard Mosey and Chris Christoff of Mellus Newspapers, Nella Pomerantz of the Macomb Daily and Helen Niemiec of The Dearborn Press. The story was written by Gary Farrugia, editor of The Dearborn Press.

While the costs of education in suburban Detroit continue to rise rapidly and drastically, the quality of education apparently does not.

Thomas Potter, a manager of Snelling & Snelling Employment Agency in Dearborn has contact with many recent high school grads who are looking for jobs. Potter is not very impressed with what he sees.

"These kids have no concept of the economic, social and political system as it really is," Potter stated. "There are many skilled fields which are begging for people, but these kids just can't handle it."

Potter says today's high school graduate uses bad grammar, is unable to perform simple math and has no "real fundamental knowledge." He feels high schools have steered away from teaching the basics.

"They are teaching kids about computers, but they don't teach them basic math," Potter complained. "Some kids who come in here looking for jobs couldn't even figure out the best buy in a grocery store if it involved simple math computations."

An employment counselor for Snelling & Snelling told Panax that 80 percent of the job applicants are unable to pass the math portion of the standard test given by the agency.

Thomas Laginess, an employment counselor for the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) in Taylor, agrees with Potter's opinion that today's graduate is deficient in math.

"Most of those we talk to at MESC have never gone beyond anything other than basic math. If a person wants to go into anything beyond a factory labor position, he is going to have to know some degree of math."

"For the most part today's high school graduate is prepared for the labor market, but a lot are limited because of their math background. We often turn away up to 50 percent of the applicants because they are deficient in math."

Employers in the Wayne-Westland and Romulus area also were unanimous in their criticism of the quality of today's high school grad. Spokesmen from the personnel offices of Unistrut Corporation, Kelsey Hayes, J.C. Penney in Westland Center and the Wayne Ford Employers Company all agreed that the quality of education of the job applicants has decreased.

"I say this by judging from the applicants," the Unistrut spokesman told Panax. "In the salaried positions, 50 percent of the applicants have poor penmanship, grammar, spelling and cannot follow directions."

"Perhaps one of the reasons today's graduate is not well equipped is because education has become more informal," the Unistrut spokesman

Tax defeat assures loss of school services

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

Romulus voters have given school authorities no choice but to cut school services by defeating a requested 5-mill tax increase by better than a 500-vote margin.

The voters cast 1,519 "no" votes and only 996 "yes" votes on the Romulus Board of Education's request for a 5-mill tax increase to maintain the same level of school operations in effect last year.

school programs to the same level as

"We're extremely disappointed in the decision, particularly because of the number of people who will be laid off because of a lack of funds," Supt. James Garfield said. "There is no hope at all of returning school services to the same operations as last year."

A massive campaign by concerned school district citizens and employees emphasized that money won through the 5-mill increase, which was to be levied during the next four years, would restore last year.

Operations had been cut following a mid-summer defeat of the same request by an even greater margin.

Following the June defeat, transportation services with a reduction in the teaching staff, specialized services, such as psychological nursing, social work the secondary schools; Junior high school athletics, and physical education, vocal music, art and instrumental music in the elementary schools.

The defeat makes it a certainty that reduced class schedules will remain that way this year, according to Garfield. "There is no way to get another request for funds on the ballot prior to the date when we can collect taxes this year," Garfield said. "It means we'll have to do without the money."

School operations were trimmed to the tune of $600,000 by the Romulus Board of Education early this fiscal year to cope with the June defeat of the millage.

The millage was necessary to cover a loss in tax "value" caused by a change in the taxing laws by the Michigan Legislature early this year.

Under the change in laws, businesses were made exempt from paying taxes on personal property to school districts, cutting the "worth" of a Romulus School mill from $227,000 last year to $196,000 this year.

The increase was to cover the loss in value of the mill.

"With the defeat, we're going to have to take a close look at next year's financial situation," Garfield said. "We know right now that we'll have to find $400,000 in 'new' money to cover the cost of a retirement system for the employees and to cover unemployment compensation costs."

"By the time the budget is finalized, we'll need a total of $1 million in new revenues to bring school operations up to the level of last year."

Parents question educational priorities

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

There is at least one Romulus couple which is upset with the Romulus Board of Education's decision to leave sports programs virtually intact while cutting back on transportation for students taking classes outside the district.

Grant and Cynthia Woolford of Romulus are angry that transportation for a cooperative vocational — education program has been cut while at the same time transportation to sports events continues.

According to Mrs. Woolford, who has four children in the Romulus School District, her son who is interested in an automobile body repair class offered cooperatively with the Van Buren School District's vocational education program, has to find his own transportation to the class.

"My son wants to become involved in auto mechanics as much as he can during school, because he'd like that for a career," Mrs. Woolford said. "When he signed up for the auto body repair class last year, he was told he'd have transportation."

"But when school was just about to begin, someone called to inform us that he could only take the class if he found his own ride."

According to Mrs. Woolford, the class is offered three days each week at the Belleville High School vocational instruction building on Sumpter Road. In the past, bus transportation was offered to students taking the course.

But, as part of a $1 million spending cutback by the board, the transportation was eliminated.

"When we called to complain about the lack of transportation, we learned that transportation was still being provided for football games," Mrs. Woolford said. "We think that's unfair."

"A school system is for educational opportunity, not to promote sports."

Both of Mrs. Woolford's sons who are in high school have participated in sports — one playing baseball until he took a job which conflicted with his baseball schedule, and the other playing on the tennis team.

"If they were deprived of their opportunity to play on the teams, I wouldn't be so upset, because in my way of thinking, sports comes second or third in school," Mrs. Woolford said.

The Romulus woman has two daughters currently attending Romulus elementary schools.

"Their programs have been cut back in art, gym and music, and I can understand, to some extent."

"But it bothers me that the sports programs remain intact."

"Both my husband and my daughters are sports nuts, so it isn't that I don't enjoy sports."

"It's a matter of priorities, where education in the schools should come first, and sports much later."

"We've talked with our neighbors about the problem, and they agree with us — education should be offered in the schools first."

"We pay our school taxes and this is what we get.

"I guess if we crab enough, something may be changed."

"But it's a shame that we even have to complain about obtaining educational opportunities for youngsters while the sports programs continue."

Crackdown!

Mayor James C. Stewart of Romulus had ordered a "crackdown" on violators of vehicle noise statutes in Michigan.

"The mayor has received many complaints about motorcycle and vehicle noise in Romulus," explained Sgt. Ron Brown of the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol. "We're intensifying our efforts to find violators."

Persons ticketed for a violation who do not contest the ticket in court will be fined $15 under city statutes.

Those ticketed for squealing tires who do not contest the ticket in court would be fined $30.

Noise violators—beware

Officers of the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol, such as Deputy Michael Terpevich pictured here, could be ticketing motorists more often for noise violations following a "crackdown" order from Mayor James C.

Stewart. This motorist is doubly lucky, since the picture is posed to dramatize the sheriff's road patrol intention to increase surveillance of noise violators, and because a guilty plea could result in a $15 fine.

Ford signs ethics code

A Michigan congressman, seeking a seventh term in office has signed the National Code of Fair Campaign Practices, pledging to conduct his campaign solely on the basis of issues.

Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) has also called upon all candidates of all parties to join him in promising to refrain from any unfair campaign practices.

"The sad saga of Watergate has ended, but its memory will remain for many years," Ford noted. "If nothing, this tragic era should have emphasized the folly of 'dirty tricks' and other unethical campaign practices."

"I firmly believe in vigorous campaigns to give voters access to all the facts and issues they need to make an informed choice on election day. As in the past, I will base my campaign this year on the basic principles of honesty, decency and fair play."

There are seven principles involved in the Fair Campaign Practices Code. They are:

—Condemnation of the use of campaign material of any sort which misrepresents, distorts or otherwise falsifies the facts regarding any candidate, as well as the use of malicious or unfounded accusations against any candidate which aim at creating or exploiting doubts, without justification, as to his loyalty and patriotism;

—Condemnation of any appeal of prejudice based on race, creed or national origin;

—Condemnation of any dishonest or unethical practice which tends to corrupt or undermine the American system of free elections or which hampers or prevents the full and free expression of the will of the voters:

—Immediate and public repudiation of support derived from any individual or group which resorts, on behalf of a candidacy or in opposition to that of an opponent to the methods and tactics which are condemned;

—Conducting a campaign in the best American tradition, discussing the issues as are seen by the candidate, presenting his or her record and policies with "sincerity and frankness" and criticizing without fear or favor the record and policies of the opponent and his or her party which merit criticism;

—Defending and upholding the right of every qualified American voter to full and equal participation in the electoral process; and —Condemnation of the use of personal vilification, character defamation, whispering campaigns, liberal or scurrilous attacks on any candidate or his personal or family life.

The code is published by the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, a non-partisan group dedicated to eliminating unethical campaign techniques.

Congressman Ford has signed such a code in each of his campaigns.

Romulus to get reserve police

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

While it virtually ignores the existence of reserve police units in two townships of Western Wayne County, the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol is about to enter the "police auxiliary business," in Romulus.

Twenty people will be graduated in ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Friday following their completion of 68 hours of training at the Wayne County Sheriff's Academy this week. They will make up the first police auxiliary unit in Romulus.

More than a year in the planning, the auxiliary concept is designed to provide sheriff's officers in the community with more "eyes and ears" which will aid in the policing of Romulus.

"These people will not be involved in any policing duties except under the direct supervision of regular sheriff's road patrol officers," explained Sgt. Ron Brown, public relations administrator for the road patrol.

"We're looking for some extra eyes and ears in the community, and some aid in the functions of police work which take cars off the road—such as crowd control at major events and traffic direction."

The 20 residents have been certified as auxiliary members after undergoing the initial 68-hour phase of police training at the sheriff's road patrol.

They will be paid $1 per year and will be furnished with uniforms and identification, but will carry no police powers except when they are directly supervised by a road patrol officer.

Besides crowd and traffic control duties, members of the force may be asked to patrol with a certified sheriff's officer.

All members of the force will carry weapons, and could be involved in regular police operations, if ordered by a sheriff's officer.

According to Brown, the members of the auxiliary will continue to train, eventually receiving 240 hours of classroom instruction and training in first aid and the use of firearms.

During the past few weeks, sheriff's officials have refused to recognize the creation of a police reserve unit in Canton Township, and the status of 16 of 18 reserve police officers in Van Buren Township because of their lack of training.

Both townships had formed the forces as adjuncts to regular sheriff's road patrols.

The Romulus operation is designed to have 50 officers trained as auxiliary members.

Auxiliary's woes come as surprise

G. ELTON GOLLWITZER

The change in status of the Van Buren Township auxiliary police force came as a surprise to Van Buren Township Supervisor G. Elton Gollwitzer.

"It wasn't until they announced in the newspapers that members of the force were not certified police officers that we had an inkling the sheriff would ignore our police," Gollwitzer said. "Until I read it in the papers that the force would not be dispatched by sheriff's officers anymore, we had normal operations and communication with the sheriff."

Only a few weeks ago, according to Gollwitzer, township officials met with Undersheriff Loren Pittman to discuss the status of the Van Buren force. At that time, the undersheriff made no mention that the Van Buren force was unacceptable to the county.

"In fact, part of the reason for the meeting was we felt there was too much dependence on Van Buren police members as the policing agents for Van Buren," Gollwitzer said. "We were concerned that the police were being used more by the county in an effort to spread county sheriff forces."

"We wanted our fair share of county services, because we feared the county looked the other way, if a Van Buren officer could handle the case."

However, the status of the force apparently changed in the eyes of the county after strife over Canton Township's largely-volunteer police auxiliary.

Canton Township Supervisor Robert Greenstein apparently cited the minimal training of Van Buren officers and their effectiveness as police auxiliary members as a reason the county sheriff should recognize the Canton Township volunteer force as police agents.

"I'm afraid Greenstein's information to the sheriff was used against our force," Gollwitzer said. "I recognize he had no malicious intent in presenting the information, he was only trying to obtain the same thing we had for his township."

"But it backfired. 'Now we're both in the same boat.'"

Van Buren's force still is patrolling the roads, but it has no contact with a central radio.

"We can't dispatch cars, although the cars can communicate on a car-to-car radio."

"We'll have to obtain a channel for our police on a patrol frequency, if the cars are to be dispatched when calls are received in Van Buren Township."

The sheriff refused to dispatch cars for Van Buren officials as it had done for years after learning that only two of the 18 officers in Van Buren are certified as police officers.

'Easy truce' continues in contract bargaining

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Enterprise Staff Writer

Teachers and administrators are at an easy truce as negotiations continue on the now expired Van Buren Education Association (VBEA) teachers' contract with the Van Buren Board of Education.

According to Bill Houston, chief negotiator for the teachers' union, the contract, which expired at the end of August, has been extended on a day-to-day basis to facilitate negotiations.

"Although we want a pact as soon as possible," Houston said, "we simply haven't had time to discuss all the issues."

"So, right now we're going to attempt to iron out details in the contract which pertain directly to school scheduling — such as the calendar — and then go begin negotiating salary and fringe benefits."

According to Houston, negotiators on both sides of the table got caught in a bind on the new contract when they had to work out details for layoffs required to trim some $1.6 million from the school budget.

"We had to iron out details about the actions the board would take to shave costs in the district before we could get into the contract itself," Houston said. "That took away some bargaining time during the summer."

Included in the $1.6 million cuts necessitated by the defeat of two previous 6-mill tax-increase proposals, was the loss of 44 teaching positions.

Despite the teacher reduction, the education association went ahead with negotiations on a new contract.

"We have some hard-line issues on where we want to go with the negotiations," Houston said. "We're right now looking at the way things are done in the school system and trying to put them into contract form."

"At this point, I'd say the teachers have 57 or so items on the table, while the board has 40-45 items to discuss."

"Because of the amount which has to be covered, it was frustrating at times not to get down to the contract issues sooner."

"But the delay may have a good effect on the situation, since it gave both sides a chance to study the others' position and find room to change."

"We're interested in covering some problems on curriculum and committee systems within the schools, and would like to be a lot further along with the bargaining at this time."

"But it hasn't happened."

Houston said that residents in the system need not fear an "instant strike" because of the current contract situation.

"The teachers can live with the conditions under which we went back to work until we settle the contract," Houston said. "We haven't even had a general membership meeting of the teachers yet, so a job action is far down the road."

A bargaining session is scheduled for tomorrow to iron out details on the school calendars.

A second session is scheduled for Sept. 23 to begin working on the other issues.

State law encourages farmland preservation

New state laws encouraging the preservation of the area's existing farm acreage and open space "appear to be achieving their major objective, according to a report in the Michigan Township News."

In a story written by Dennis A. Conway and Dennis J. Hall of the Division of Land Resource Programs for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), it was reported that laws allowing a farm to set aside tillable acreage as farmland for up to 10 years in return for a break on taxes has "saved" better than 114,000 acres.

Though figures aren't available for farmland in Romulus, Van Buren Township and Canton Township, the three largely rural communities in Western Wayne County have had their share of land set aside as farmland.

Under the law, a farmer can apply for a tax credit on his property in exchange for the promise that the property is used for farmland for at least 10 years.

According to the article, the average sized farm involved in the program is 164 acres with a state equalized value of $47,580. Returns on taxes paid for the land add up to $1,200 yearly on bills of $1,800 normally charged against the property.

The plan was designed to combat a major problem with assessment laws in quickly developing areas. Farmland, regardless of its agricultural use, is often taxed based on its potential use rather than the real use of the land.

For instance, in Canton Township, farmland which would be suitable for single family housing or apartment uses is taxed at a higher rate than agricultural land, forcing an economic hardship on a farmer, and encouraging the farmer to unload his property before he takes too great a loss on the higher tax.

The problem is even more acute in Romulus, with its zoning based on city needs, as opposed to the relatively low township taxes.

Particularly in the southwestern section of the city, farmers were under great pressure to sell their land because of the rising taxes and the expansion of the water and sewer system.

Under the law, a farm in the community can escape some of the higher costs of owning the land by giving a pledge to continue to use it for agricultural purposes.

In addition to the farmland development act, two other programs encouraging the setting aside of open space along Michigan's designated natural rivers and in local areas also have been termed a success.

According to the reports, some 225 acres of land along two of five natural watercourses as defined by the Designated Open Space Category, and some 3,000 acres of land as defined by the Local Open Space category have been set aside since the law was adopted in July, 1975.

The articles urges residents who may wish to become involved in the program to obtain information from the Division of Land Resource Programs, Department of Natural Resources, Box 30028, Lansing, 489-9. Telephone information can be obtained by calling the division at 517-373-3328.

Car wash benefits cheerleader squad

The Romulus Athletic Club will be sponsoring a car wash for the Romulus cheerleaders and Pep Club, beginning at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Romulus Wesleyan Church, 37300 Goddard.

The cheerleaders, ages 9 through 13 years, are trying to earn enough money for new uniforms for next year. There are seven girls on the squad of three units — freshman, junior varsity and varsity. Serena Hardrick is the cheerleaders' advisor.

The Pep Club is made up of girls of all ages who help the cheerleaders on activities. The club is planning surprises for all of the home games and plan to sell popcorn during the confrontations on the playing field. In charge of the Pep Club are Barbara Korgal and Anna Moore.

The cost of the car wash will be a donation of $1.

Students net degrees

Three Belleville residents have received their college degrees following recent commencement ceremonies at their respective universities.

At Baylor University in Waco, Tex., Belleville resident Cynthia Hook was among 451 degree recipients Aug. 14. Miss Hook, who lives at 42781 Savage Road, received her bachelor of music education degree.

Degree candidates at the Aug. 22 commencement ceremonies for the University of Michigan-Dearborn were Belleville residents John A. DeFranco of 48510 Denton Road and Robert C. Lenell Jr. of 48691 I-94 Service Drive.

Both men received their master of science degree in engineering, with DeFranco majoring in mechanical engineering and Lenell in electrical engineering.

Meat loaf, school steak top cafeterias' weekly offerings

The cuisine in the Van Buren and Romulus Community schools' cafeterias will include such foods as baked meat loaf, macaroni and cheese, school steak and spaghetti with meat sauce next week.

In Van Buren's elementary schools the menu Monday will include juice, pizzaburgers on buns, fruit, icy bird and milk, followed by juice, bread and butter, spaghetti with small meatballs, cheese and tomato sauce or tacos, fruit, cake and milk Tuesday.

Next Wednesday the youngsters will be dining on pizza, salad, cole slaw or a vegetable, fruit Jell-O, cobbler and milk, with soup, sloppy joes on buns, potato chips, fruit, pudding and milk slated for next Thursday.

Capping off the week will be a lineup of juice, macaroni and cheese or peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, bread and butter, vegetable, cake and milk.

In Van Buren's junior high schools the menu will start off with a bill of fare of pizzaburgers on buns, with side dishes of juice, potato chips, fruit, icy bird and milk.

Tuesday's lineup will be baked meat loaf with mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetable, bread and butter, fruit Jell-O, bavarian cream pie and milk, while juice, oven-fried chicken, mashed potatoes with gravy, fruit, cake and milk will be served next Wednesday.

Next Thursday the menu will be cheeseburgers on buns, tator tots, cole slaw, pudding and milk, while soup, fishwich, french fries, fruit, cake and milk will round out the week.

The B lunch program in the two junior highs will have main dishes of Belleville burgers Monday, double burgers with cheese Tuesday, two tacos next Wednesday, Coney Island foot-long hot dogs next Thursday and shrimp in a bun next Friday. The side dishes will be french fries or tator gems, dessert and milk.

In the Romulus Community

Schools tomorrow the cafeterias will be serving school steak, whipped potatoes with gravy, green beans, bread and butter, cookies and milk, while topping off this week will be a menu of tuna casserole, buttered peas, bread and butter, juice and milk.

Starting out the luncheon lineup next week will be a menu of Coney Island hot dogs, cole slaw, rolls and butter, fruit cup and milk, followed by spaghetti with meat sauce, buttered corn, bread and butter, pineapple cup and milk slated for Tuesday.

Next Wednesday the cafeterias will be serving tacos, french fries, vegetable, bread and butter, fruit cup and milk, with whipped potatoes and meat gravy, buttered beans, bread and butter, cookies and milk planned for next Thursday.

Rounding out the week is a lineup of sloppy joes or hot dogs, buttered corn, rolls and butter, fruit cup and milk.

Seniors' club meeting marks birthdays and anniversaries

Tomorrow night's meeting of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club will be a special occasion for those persons marking birthdays or anniversaries.

Beginning at 6:30 p.m. in Edgemont Elementary School the club will be honoring those persons with special dates during the month of September with a party.

To be honored for September anniversaries will be Merrill and Nora Bird, Ollie and Elizabeth Hunter and Theodore and Eva Tupper, while the birthday persons will be Hazel Greashaber, Kitty Hornkohl, Louise Van Sickle, Alta Butts, Ida Wertz, Grace DeFran-cisco, Leona Agge, Frank Cebolski, Rita Haynes, Jeane Wilson, Muriel Smith, Bill Gordon and Kathryn Crosslen.

The speaker for the meeting will be Louise Comey of Family and Neighborhood Services, who will discuss services and aid for local senior citizens. Other area leaders also will be on hand to help with future plans.

Following the meeting and speakers, the monthly bingo game will be held.

A call also has been sent out for members of the Kitchen Band for a practice session in preparation for an upcoming engagement.

In the offering for the senior citizen organization is a pot luck dinner on Sept. 23.

New members welcomed to the club at the first fall meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lunde.

Farm wins blue ribbon for its boar

A Romulus farm has walked away with honors after entering the swine judging at the 1976 Michigan State Fair.

Alcay Farms, located at 6545 Cogswell Road, captured the honor of Reserved Grand Champion Boar during the judging at the State Fair this year.

Woodlands 'dress up' for fall

Jack Frost paints state's forest 'colorful'

Spectacular views of Michigan's forests in vivid fall colors await travelers who hop on a boat or a train, paddle a canoe or peddle a bike, jump into the family jalopy or just hike along a woodland path, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Of the many ways to see the vivid hues of Michigan's woods in autumn, one of the most interesting is from the deck of a boat cruising Lake Superior. Starting Sept. 21 and continuing into October, the Pictured Rocks Cruises at Munising runs daily 3-hour, narrated fall color trips along the rocky shores of Upper Michigan.

The boats travel 17 1/2 miles along the world famous Pictured Rocks - a colorful expanse of forest-topped rocks that can be seen only from the water. The picturesque rock formations and the brilliant colors of surrounding autumn leaves provide breathtaking views when seen against a backdrop of blue water and sky. Cruises are subject to the weather.

Combine a boat ride with a train trip on two U.P. fall color tours centered around the Tahquamenon Falls - second largest waterfall east of the Mississippi River.

Starting at Soo Junction off M-28, the Toonerville Trolley - an authentic narrow-gauge railroad - takes passengers six miles through wilderness to Hunter's Mill, where they disembark and board the Hiawatha Riverboat for a 21-mile trip down the Tahquamenon River to just above the rapids. From there, it's a half-mile hike to view the upper falls.

The whole trip takes 6 1/2 hours and is offered once daily at 10:30 a.m. from now until Oct. 6.

The Riverboat and Timber Train Ride, based at Slater's Landing 10 miles north of Hulbert off M-28, reverses the order of the trip to the falls and is a shorter journey - 4 1/2 hours. Passengers first board the Diantha Hulbert for a 17-mile trip on the river. Next is a 2-mile ride aboard the Paul Bunyan Timber Train, followed by a short walk to the upper falls. This trip is offered daily at 10:30 a.m. now until Oct. 10.

Color cruises are offered at other locations. In northwest Michigan, travelers have two choices - the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce 1 1/2 hour cruises on Lake Charlevoix or the Ironport Ferry's under 5-minute mini-tour for just 50 cents. The chamber cruises are run at 1 p.m. Saturdays, Oct. 2 and 9, and on Oct. 10. Tickets must be purchased in advance from the chamber. The ferry, painted red, white and blue for the Bicentennial, takes lops about a half-hour off driving time. It is pulled across the lake on cables.

While at Boyne City, hop aboard the Boyne Valley Railroad for a scenic color excursion that takes just under two hours each way. There are four 14-mile round trips every Saturday and Sunday through October, and the tracks run through picturesque Boyne Mountain Ski Resort to Boyne Falls.

If you've never been on a paddle wheel boat, there are four in Michigan offering fall color cruises - the Au Sable River Queen Boats near Oscoda, the Island Queen in Kensington Metro Park near Detroit and Grand Rapids' Grand River Queen Paddle Wheel Riverboard. Canoeists on Michigan's rivers and streams get close-up views of brilliant autumn leaves in untouched wilderness settings. There are dozens of canoe trails in the state and all offer views of Michigan's fall color spectacular that often can't be seen from a highway.

If paddling a canoe doesn't appeal to you, try pedaling a bike along wooded paths teeming with color. Among the many routes you can take is the first bicycle path ever constructed by the state Department of Highways and Transportation. Opened two years ago, the 1 1/2-mile path runs along M-99 from the north city limits of Hillsdale to the south city limits of Jonesville. The paved path is eight feet wide and is situated about 50 feet east of the highway.

Another close-up way to see the woods in flaming fall color is in the family car or - if you're an antique car buff - on the annual Fall Color Tour of the Horseless Carriage Club of America-Grand Rapids chapter. The 2-day tour starts at Sparta at 8 a.m. Sept. 25. And after an overnight stop at Glen Arbor, the tour returns to Grand Rapids at 6 p.m. Sept. 26. About 75 cars - all at least 25 years old - will participate and the fastest speed is 25 miles an hour. Only club members will take part, but spectators are invited to follow.

If hiking is your favorite pastime, Michigan's state parks and forests have well-marked trails through woods ablaze with color.

Color tour information can be obtained from area tourist bureaus or chambers of commerce. Tourism officials in the U.P. estimate color will be at its peak there starting Friday and ending Oct. 3.

The color should spread to northern Lower Michigan Sept. 24 through Oct. 10; central Lower Michigan, Oct. 1-16, and southern Lower Michigan Oct. 8-24.

Job Service has speaker's bureau

Local civic groups, employers' associations and service organizations seeking speakers for fall meetings may find one at the local Job Service office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC), according to MESC Director S. Martin Taylor.

Announcing the information of a statewide speaker's bureau, Taylor said that local Job Service representatives will be available to produce a 10-minute audio-visual presentation on MESC's Job Service program and answer questions posed by local community groups.

The speaker's bureau is part of MESC's new Job Service campaign to recruit more job orders from Michigan employers for thousands of unemployed workers now on file with the agency.

"For the past year or so, the spotlight has been on MESC's unemployment benefits program," Taylor said. Local groups may request a Job Service speaker by contacting their local MESC Job Service office or by writing to MESC's

Public Information Services Division, 7310 Woodward, Detroit 48202.

As we see it

Schools must review basic ed standards

IT CAME as a great shock to many of us, we are sure, when we learned a year or two ago that some of our children were not being properly educated in, of all things, the basics.

If you remember, the basics provide the tools that enable us to read and write.

It bothered us to find this out because we thought this was being done with loving care.

Now we find out that today many of our children still are being graduated from high school even though they obviously have a great deal of difficulty reading and writing.

This revelation, originally underscored by colleges and universities which were forced to set up remedial reading clinics to aid incoming freshmen deficient in this skill, has been confirmed by Panax Corp. through a Detroit area-wide project.

Panax, of which Associated Newspapers is a division, assigned its southeastern Michigan properties to interview dozens of school and business leaders in an effort to assess and analyze the seriousness of this situation.

Out of this project has come three articles, all intended to put into perspective the situation as it prevails today.

Reading the articles, which appear on the front page, and Pages A-6 and A-7, show that the results of the survey are contradictory in many instances.

All but several school officials said they felt that high school graduates for the most part were well schooled in the basics. Personnel people from industry and business on the other hand were of the near unanimous opinion that many youngsters who came to them looking for employment were not prepared at all, not only in reading and writing, but they also displayed an ugly attitude that insisted the world owed them a living.

We would like to know what's going on.

Naturally, school leaders are not going to admit that their educational programs fail to emphasize the basics the way they should.

They point with pride to the high school students who receive high scores on evaluative testing and insist that such performances tend to negate the inference of inferior teaching in the area of basic skills.

We would not deny that many students do score high, but it also is a fact that most of the high scorers who go on to college continue to excel, indicating they were the type of student who was constantly involved in the learning process even when not in school.

Then there is the so-called "average" student, those who don't go on to college and whose learning process was pretty much restricted to in-school instruction. They sought employment where they could. If they were lucky and had a solid vocational training in some skilled job category they should have had no trouble finding work.

But what about the others? Various "blue" and "white" collar jobs beckoned them and this was where the apparent rub existed. Personnel people interviewed said unhesitatingly that too many students could not follow instructions because they were terribly deficient in reading. And if this weren't bad enough, they also had a great degree of difficulty in expressing themselves through the written word.

We blame in part the so-called "modern" approach to education where the student is encouraged to be a "thinker," a concept that unfortunately has been at the expense of the simple basics in many instances.

What the child needs is simple enough. Give him a solid foundation early. Teach him to read and write first and then let him explore his mind and his world to his heart's content.

We are not totally convinced that the school systems are doing all they can to ensure proper education in the basics. Too many frills and too many frivolous programs combined with top-heavy bureaucracies have not made the job any easier.

We would strongly encourage school administrators and boards of education to take a long, hard look at their responsibilities in this area and make certain they are not in default.

School officials disagree

Area employers critical of quality of education

By COLLETTE POLLARD
Panax News Service

Can they or can't they? Only their school system knows for sure...or do they?

Can a recent high school graduate from our area's community educational systems master simple math and English tasks? But, more importantly, will they be able to survive in the "real world" by utilizing and relating these tools which they have learned?

Depending upon whom you talk to, the answer to these questions can be as different as 1, 2, 3 or A, B, C.

Various area employers who encounter the students fresh out of high school applying for their first jobs say they cannot. While school administrators contest that each of their graduates are deserving of their diploma and have the capability to handle jobs requiring basic subjects.

Such opposition cannot help but cause one to wonder where the missing link has gone.

The views of the employers are based on applications which flow into their personnel offices from graduates applying for positions with their company.

Employers in the Wayne-Westland and Romulus areas were unanimous in their criticism of the quality of today's high school graduate. Spokesmen from the personnel offices of Unistrut Corporation, Kelsey Hayes, J.C. Penney in the Westland Shopping Center and the Wayne Ford Employers Company all agreed that the quality of education of the job applicants has decreased.

Many of the employers voiced opinions as to the reason for this decline. At the head of the list was the schools' shift of emphasis away from the 3R's and movement toward subjects of world awareness and political history.

"Education has not provided graduates who are as well equipped as 10 years ago," said a spokesman for Unistrut Corp., in Wayne. "Perhaps one of the reasons for this is because education has become more informal. They are emphasizing other areas such as psychology, sociology, and less concentration has been directed to the basic subjects."

"In the salaried positions, 50 percent of the applicants have poor penmanship, grammar, spelling and cannot follow directions on the applications," the Unistrut spokesman said.

Despite their consensus toward the uprise of less educated graduates being turned out of the high schools, none of the companies have either increased or decreased their job standards for employee admittance.

A spokesman for the J.C. Penney Company located in the Westland Shopping Center said, "Employees look for high standards and some of the applicants of today often do not reach them. They have poor spelling, grammar, penmanship and fail to read directions or are just unable to understand the application. For this reason, employers are very choosy and only the well qualified will get the job."

Officials from the Romulus, Belleville, Wayne-Westland and Plymouth educational districts believe that the students in their respective areas are responding positively to their education programs and are fully equipped to enter the "real world".

"There were more drop-outs 10 years ago because now we are doing everything we can to keep kids in school longer," said Bill Murphy, coordinator for the Vocational Education Program in the Wayne-Westland School District. "Because of this, I feel that they are able to handle assignments requiring math and English and use it on their jobs."

John M. Hoben, superintendent of the Plymouth School District, believes that the quality of high school graduates from his area have increased because of "better information and delivery of it."

"We emphasize basic education and our graduates are equipped to handle fundamental job requirements and a high percentage go to college or enter the job market," Hoben said.

Each of the school administrators agree that there are some students who never retain education and never possess an interest in school.

"It is a shame to see students who go through high school in a haphazard way and take very little interest," said Doug Brown, director of instruction for the Van Buren School District. "They show poor attendance records and also show no indication of getting a whole lot out of high school. It is too bad that there are some students who graduate without having any significance for their diploma."

Dr. Timothy Dyer, superintendent of the Wayne-Westland School District, understands that each of his students are individuals and learn at different levels.

"There is nothing unique about students with problems," he said. "Math and English are extremely difficult subjects for people to grasp. We realize that students do not learn in the same way and that each must be dealt with differently. We have more kids in school, therefore, the problems increase. Ten years ago, kids with problems dropped out because they could get unskilled jobs, whereas, today they are not as plentiful."

During this bicentennial year, more high school graduates are enrolling in colleges and universities across this country. More opportunities and careers are available to the graduate and less students are entering the job market fresh out of high school.

"Twenty-five to 30 years ago high schools were graduating different ability students," Murphy said. "The students concentrated in vocational-business areas and were not directed to college. The 'cream of the crop' students, the ones who were superior achievers were going on to clerical or vocational jobs. Nowadays, the higher ability students are not concentrated in these areas, but are going on to college. Because of the variety of opportunities and courses in school, their interests are directed in other areas. Thirty years ago the class president took the job of a typist or secretary, but today that is rare."

Teachers, administrators and school officials depend a great deal on their educational system. They cannot follow their students through life but must rely on their program in hopes that it has supplied the student with superior learning opportunities. When a graduate packs up his books, papers and memories the school officials can only hope that he leaves with everything in the form of knowledge and can apply it to his life after high school.

"I would hope that diplomas are worth as much or more because we offer more opportunities to students," Hoben said. "Education has more intensity and the demand is greater for educated students."

For students, education is only a nine-month affair, whereas, it is a year round job for administrators. There must be a constant flow of ideas, information and output from these men and women to keep the education system fresh and new.

"The 'Johnny Can't Read' articles have been out since I was in school," Dyer said. "I believe that our school system is improving, perhaps not as fast or dramatic enough as some would like it. There is still a lot of work left to do, but we are definitely improving in such areas as math and English."

The controversy will probably continue, but regardless of this neither the school system or the employers will be the loser. It will be the student and as they leave behind their high school days, their capability in the job market or in college life will be affected by many things including the quality of education which they have received.

Kalamazoo tackles problem of 'declining competency'

(The Kalamazoo school system three years ago tackled the problem of declining competency in its student body and set out to correct it. Panax Newspapers special writer Gary Farrugia, editor of the Dearborn Press, spent two days recently in Kalamazoo getting details of the program and assessing its results. This is his report.)

By GARY FARRUGIA
Panax News Service

In 1972, Kalamazoo public school officials compiled data relating students in the local school district to national testing scores. The results were disappointing.

Based on national norm reference testing from 1965 to 1972, Kalamazoo students were falling further and further behind, according to Dr. David Bartz, acting director of research and development for the Kalamazoo Public Schools.

The Kalamazoo Public School system has 15,000 students of which 24 percent of the student body is composed of minority groups, mostly black youngsters.

"A typical black kid would enter the Kalamazoo school system in the first grade at the 54th percentile (above average)," Bartz explained. "By the ninth grade, that same black kid would be more than three years behind the national norm."

"The average white kid enters first grade in Kalamazoo at the 70th percentile, well above the national norm," Bartz added. "By the ninth grade he is only several months ahead of the national average."

"We decided that the best approach was to concentrate on the three R's and the basic fundamentals of education," Bartz continued. "A student will never do well in social studies if he or she can't read."

Bartz, along with then superintendent of Kalamazoo schools, Dr. William Coats, developed the new program of objective measurement for a student's progress in the school system.

With a heavy emphasis on reading skills, Bartz developed a series of objective norm reference tests for students in grades K-12.

The Metropolitan Achievement Tests (MAT) are designed to give school officials an accurate and objective measure of a student's advancements in mastering the basics of education.

The MAT tests are given over a two to three-day period. The test covers simple math, problem solving, language usage and word knowledge. The test also determines a student's ability to utilize basic study aids such as an encyclopedia and dictionary.

The MAT tests are administered twice per year in grades one through six. In junior high school, in grades seven, eight and nine, the tests are given from May to May. At the senior high level, the tests are given each fall.

The standardized test results are fed into a computer which breaks down the data into raw scores, grade equivalent units and percentile ranking for each student. The computer also provides a norm or average score for the tests among the students who take the exam.

The MAT tests have already produced a positive impact on Kalamazoo students' national educational level in its four years of operation.

A comparison chart for white students in the school district shows that ninth grade pupils in Kalamazoo have gone from slightly above the national average in 1972 to substantially above the national norm in 1976.

While black students in Kalamazoo are still behind the national average by the time they reach the ninth grade, they are not as far behind. The average black student who reached the ninth grade three years behind is now about two-and-a-half years behind.

"Once you get behind, just to maintain that same level of 'behindness,' you must keep at an average pace," Bartz observed. "The testing is an objective measurement which goes on over a period of time. With the results, we are trying to predict what is going to happen to a particular student based on what has happened in his previous test scores."

Bartz said the testing system is a benefit in identifying students who have deficiencies in certain basic educational skills. The test results, over a period of time, can pinpoint the problem and corrective measures can be taken.

"When a child enters the fifth grade we can look back on his previous test scores," Bartz explained. "We have longitudinal data on this child. If he is repeating in poor performance in certain areas, we can catch it in its early stages."

Once a student's deficiency is identified, the school system and the teacher have several alternatives. The regular teaching program can be altered or emphasized to the problem student. The student can also be transferred into a special compensatory education program run by the district. If neither alternative is effective, the student will be retained in the same grade for another year.

"The new program also has improved on the methods and criteria for retaining students," Bartz commented. "Teacher-given grades are neither reliable nor consistent. They are subjective and vary from teacher to teacher."

"How much you know and what it's worth depends to a large measure on what other people know," Bartz explained. "It is very relative, but there must be some objective measure we can use for a reference. We want our high school graduates to receive a diploma that means they have achieved and are capable of certain skills."

The Kalamazoo Public School system takes complete responsibility, in the form of teacher and school administrator accountability, for training its students in basic educational skills.

The teachers and principals are held accountable for the success or failure of the district's students. The program has resulted in the firing of several non-tenure teachers and five school principals currently are under probation.

The teachers are rated each year by students, principals and parents. Principals are rated by teachers, parents and administrators.

Administrators are rated by the superintendent, principals and the school board. The superintendent also is rated on a similar scale. In the case of administrators and the school superintendent, their salaries for the year are determined by an elaborate point system from the ratings.

Both administrators and the superintendent get rating points for the level of achievement students attain during the year. They also are rated on ability to work with teachers, parents and students. A school administrator's salary may go up or down depending on the sliding rating scale.

While the merit pay basis is in operation for administrators, the Kalamazoo Education Association (the teacher's union) has opposed such a merit pay scale for the teachers.

Teachers are rated on a mandated series of objectives issued to each upper level teacher in each subject. (For example, an American History teacher will receive objectives that his students know the famous battles of the Civil War before the end of the course.)

In addition to these mandated objectives, the teacher lists his own personal objectives for the semester. On the success of reaching these goals, the teacher is rated.

"In accumulating all this general data, we try to make it useful to the individual," Bartz noted. "When you talk about student competence, you must break it down to each individual student."

"We work down with the data," Bartz explained. "The breakdown begins by sex, race and age group, then we break down into each grade level in each building. The next break down indicates how well each teacher did with a group of students in a particular class."

Bartz said he is pleased with the four-year experiment in Kalamazoo, and plans to continue with it, even though the man who created the system, Dr. Coats, has since left to take the superintendent's job in Grosse Pointe.

"The high school grad of today is not as well equipped, he does not know as many basic skills, as the high school grad of 10 years ago," Bartz observed. "There are many studies which can verify that fact. We have had high school kids who elect to take English composition, but they can't even write a sentence. We have to turn that around."

"During the sixties, education went through a time when it was fashionable to provide a curriculum around what kids wanted to learn rather than what they fundamentally needed," Bartz said. "That's like frosting a cake before it is baked."

Are schools failing in teaching basics?

continued. "Teachers emphasize areas such as psychology and sociology, and concentrate less on the basic subjects."

Fred Moshoginis, personnel supervisor at McLouth Steel in Trenton, says qualified applicants for jobs at McLouth are few and far between. Moshoginis however blames the applicants' lack of qualifications on a bad attitude rather than a faulty education system.

"I think the problem is one of apathy on the part of the high school graduates themselves," Moshoginis said. "They just don't seem to care,

'These kids have no concept of the economic, social and political system as it really is.'

— Thomas Potter, Snelling & Snelling

and have a bad attitude like someone owes them a living. Years back high school graduates would come in and ask 'What can I do? Now they ask, 'How much do you pay?'

"I have 14,000 applications here right now and I know even before I look through them that 13,000 should just be thrown away. High school graduates don't care. Some of them just have the bare essentials and still they expect to be given a free ride by society."

Ida Temple, personnel director for the City of Lincoln Park, agrees that today's high school graduate is less motivated than his predecessors.

"The applicants I am exposed to can all read and write fairly well, but the desire to excel seems to be lacking in many of our young people," she said.

Temple has a daughter who recently graduated from Lincoln Park High School.

"Lincoln Park is probably one of the best high schools in existence but has one of the lowest standards. A student can go to the high school and receive a good education but others can get by with a minimal amount of effort," Temple said.

At the General Motors Technical Center in Warren, personnel placement manager J.B. Sparhawk said he has detected no decline in the quality of education of high school graduates in recent years.

"Sometimes we have to look through a few more applications than we did in the past," Sparhawk commented. "But those we do select are of the same quality as those 10 years ago."

"There are some very bright kids today," Sparhawk added. "On the other hand we see less emphasis on fundamentals and we feel it is important for kids to be prepared with the fundamentals. It provides the foundation upon which they will build any kind of career."

The general consensus from employers interviewed is that today's high school grad is not learning the three R's either at the elementary or high school level.

Not surprisingly, educators in each area had different explanations for the decline of national testing averages. Most educators interviewed believed the quality of education had increased in their particular school district.

"I think the quality of education has gone up in the past 10 years in terms of the kinds of educational opportunity we are presenting to

'I believe our school system is improving, perhaps not as fast or dramatically as some would like it. There is still much work to do, but we are definitely improving in such areas as math and English.'

— Wayne-Westland Supt. Timothy Dyer

youngsters," said Dr. Douglas Lund, Dearborn superintendent of Schools. "Yes, I would say it has improved. It definitely hasn't suffered any."

Three school superintendents interviewed in far western Wayne County also believed that the quality of education had increased in their respective districts.

"The quality of education has increased because of better information and delivery," Plymouth Supt. John M. Hoben stated. "We are retaining a higher percentage of students than 10 years ago."

"Education has more intensity today, and the demand is greater for educated students," Hoben added. "Yes, I suppose there are some who graduate who really do not deserve their diploma, but not many."

Van Buren (Belleville) Supt. Dale Kaulitz noted that the percentage of students who receive diplomas is greater today than 10 years ago.

"I would like to say in this area the quality of education has increased, but nationwide test results prove contradictory," Kaulitz explained. "This is certainly a matter of opinion. More graduates are getting diplomas than they did 10 years ago because we are keeping them in school longer. We are doing all we can to keep kids interested in school, although there are always some who aren't measuring up to educational standards."

Dr. Timothy Dyer, superintendent of the Wayne-Westland School District, also believes today's high school graduate is equipped to handle job assignments.

"The 'Johnny Can't Read' articles have been out since I was in school," Dyer stated. "I believe that our school system is improving, perhaps not as fast or dramatically as some would like it. There is still much work to do, but we are definitely improving in such areas as math and English."

In Macomb County, the L'Anse Creuse School District has observed no decline in educational quality, according to director of curriculum Dr. Roy Cloud. Cloud revealed that the L'Anse Creuse school district will begin testing 10th graders for standardized math and English skills this year.

"A diploma indicates a student has earned credits under our standards," Cloud stated. "Whether or not the student deserves the grade has to do with the process you set for standards."

Educational competency tests also have been instituted in the Riverview School District on an experimental basis. Last June a voluntary consumerism test was given to 157 Riverview 10th graders. Twenty percent of the students passed the test with a 90 percent or better score. The question most often missed by the Riverview 10th graders was:

'Education has decreased, and the reason it has decreased is because of the employee negotiation process. We are putting a greater amount of money into salaries, and not enough into educational programs.'

— Allen Park Supt. Richard Hogancamp

"Steve borrowed $200 from his bank. He repaid it in six monthly installments of $37.50 each. What was the cost of the loan in dollars? (Answer: $25)"

"We should be trying to make sure all students leave high school with a salable skill," Trenton High School Principal Neil Van Riper observed. "I think our school system does a fine job in preparing students. I haven't seen any decline in the quality of our graduates over the years in our test scores. We always have been above average."

Dr. Richard Hogancamp, superintendent of the Allen Park School District, believes the quality of education has declined in the past 10 years. Hogancamp blames teacher's contract costs for the decline in education.

"Education has decreased, and the reason it has decreased is because of the employee negotiation process," Hogancamp noted. "We are putting a greater amount of money into salaries, and not enough into educational programs."

Simon Kachaterian, superintendent of the Taylor School District, disagrees. Kachaterian believes educational quality has increased.

"Education has increased tremendously, providing many opportunities for youngsters," Kachaterian said. "Individualized instruction in Taylor provides an opportunity for youngsters to select from 50 classes."

The Rev. John Fallon, principal of Aquinas High School in Southgate believes the quality of education has improved because "there are far more opportunities provided for a much more diversified curriculum today."

"Whether or not the students have taken advantage," Rev. Fallon said, "is another matter."

"I would have to say that the graduate of 10 years ago was much more equipped to handle basic communications and mathematical problems than the graduate of today."

"The high school diploma certainly is worth less today than it was 10 years ago when one compares the high school graduate of today and 10 years ago," Fallon noted. "The tendency today is for more students to get their high school diploma in vocational training and less emphasis is placed on higher education."

Dr. Stuart Bundy, president of Henry Ford Community College,

'In the salaried positions, 50 percent of the applicants have poor penmanship, grammar, spelling and cannot follow directions.'

— A Unistrut spokesman believes, as do many educators, that the influence of television has lessened the student's interest in reading.

"Students are learning a great deal from the media, especially TV," Bundy commented. "They are more oriented to visuals. The schools are teaching from books, and students are no longer oriented to books."

"This is a problem the schools have had delivered to them," Bundy added. "The kids get instant learning from TV. Students don't learn as much in conceptual aspects as in the past. They can't study the abstract."

One local superintendent perhaps best summed up the story when he said:

"I can place any graduate from our high school into any given college. The question is, will he survive?"

Hobo theme in keeping at retirement party

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Jim Chamberlain of 27567 Eureka Rd., Romulus, is enjoying his leisure time around the house since retiring from Great Lakes Steel in Ecorse where he had been employed for 32 years.

He and his wife, Lillie (who's better known as "Gus"), are taking things in their stride now that the family's big party for Jim is in the past. With the help of her four children and their mates, "Gus" recently entertained some 50 guests at a "hobo dinner" on their patio and lawn.

When "Gus" wrote to Action Line about containers for the stew, her query was answered with a little hobo drawing included. The family copied the figure and used it as the theme for the invitations which went out to relatives and friends.

Having rented two huge hanging pots for the meal, the Chamberlains with assistance from his sister, Audrey Simmons, and her sister, Elizabeth Jennings, proceeded to cut up all the meat and vegetables which were called for in the recipe. The stew was then cooked over coals and served with lots of other hardy food including ham and dishes brought by the couple's children.

Helping make their dad's party a memorable occasion were Norma and Bob Wiltzsch of Sterling Heights, Martha and Don Galvin of Mt. Clemens, Jimmie and Diane Chamberlain of Onstead and Leon and Glenda Chamberlain of Sterling Heights. The couple's nine grandchildren were also present to enjoy volleyball, frisbee, horseshoes and other outdoor entertainment.

Among the many mementoes from the party was a huge hobo poster with the words "Congratulations Jim — 32 years with Great Lakes Steel — 1944-1976" which each of the guests autographed. Besides the poster, "Gus" also made a number of cakes, among them a special one she decorated with a blue lake and fisherman which denoted Jim's favorite pastime and a miniature rocking chair to represent the times he would just be taking it easy.

She's an NAA director

Maxine O. Heifner of Edison Lake Road, Belleville, has been elected Director at Large of the Western Wayne Chapter of the National Association of Accountants for the 1976-77 year. She is an employee of the Kelsey-Hayes Co. in Romulus.

The Western Wayne Chapter serves the communities west and northwest of Detroit and the Downriver area. The National Association of Accountants is an organization with over 80,000 members.

Re-run 25 years later

Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Robson Road, Belleville, were very pleased when their son, Daniel, was assigned to Mrs. Florence Payne's kindergarten class some 25 years ago. At that time all classes, K. through 12, were held at Belleville High School.

Therefore, when their grandson, Christopher Taylor, Daniel's son, had the luck of drawing Mrs. Payne as his kindergarten teacher at Quirk School, the Taylors were overjoyed.

"She is the kind of excellent teacher we need more of," Mrs. Taylor said, "and we are tickled pink to have Chris carrying on the family 'tradition.'"

Every golfer's dream —

— And what is that, you non-golfers ask? Why, that often longed-for but rarely achieved hole-in-one, no less!

That was the thrilling, breathtaking (and we say that literally!) experience which Leona Van Buhler had on Sept. 8 at Tall Oaks Golf Course in Romulus. Golfing with her good friends, Mildred Baker of Belleville and Georgianna Fry of Wayne, Leona used her driver on the par-3, 103-yard seventh hole which produced her exciting ace.

The shot not only was witnessed by her partners but by two men on the next tee — John Slinagis of Trenton and his friend, Helmuth Pernal.

Leona, who is secretary for the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce, has been golfing only two years (enough to make any seasoned golfer cry!)

In a way, she seems to be following a family "act" since her 80-year old father-in-law, Russell Van Buhler, scored his ace earlier in the season at Don's Executive Course of Belleville.

First for Glinskis

Seventy-one members of the Glinski family gathered Aug. 29 on the picnic grounds of St. Stephen's parish in New Boston for their first annual reunion. Games including a sack race and egg toss were enjoyed along with baseball and volleyball games.

Aunts, uncles and cousins traveled from Dayton, Ohio; Almont, Dearborn Heights, Romulus, Wayne, Ann Arbor, Plymouth, Garden City, Canton, Southfield, New Boston, Westland and Belleville for the get-together. Plans are already underway for the 1977 reunion.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS B. AKANS

Akans-Vera vows heard at St. Anthony's Church

Since returning from their 2-week honeymoon at Mackinac Island, Houghton Lake and the Upper Peninsula, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burl Akans have taken up residence at 87 Potter Dr., Belleville.

Eva Vera, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Vera of 46901 Lauren Ct., Belleville, became Mrs. Akans Aug. 14 when she exchanged nuptial vows and rings before The Rev. Raymond S. Skoney.

For the occasion, the altar was graced with arrangements of carnations, mums and gladiolas. Marleen Wallerstadt was at the organ to provide wedding music.

For the 2 p.m. ceremony at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, the bride appeared in a gown of rose-patterned lace styled with a high scalloped neckline, long lace sleeves and a tiered bouffant skirt which cascaded into a circular train.

Her chapel-length veil of silk illusion was banded in matching lace and secured by a little crescent headpiece of lace and baby seed pearls. Completing her bridal finery was a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses, blue carnations, iceberg mums and baby's breath.

As her sister's maid of honor, Lupe Vera of Belleville donned a pale blue qiana dress fashioned with long sleeves and a gathered empire bodice accented at the waist by a diamond shaped insert. She carried a bouquet of blue tinted carnations, daisies and baby's breath and tucked matching carnations in her hair.

The bridegroom's sister, Tina Akans of Belleville, was in an identical mint green ensemble while maize was the choice for the third attendant, Gayle Carr of Belleville.

The carnations in their bouquets matched their frocks as did the blooms worn as their headpieces.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Akans of 45 Potter Dr., Belleville, the bridegroom chose his best friend, Bill Doonan of Belleville, to serve as best man. John Vera of Belleville and Doug Akans of Royal Oak, brothers of the young couple, were ushers.

At the reception which followed at UAW Local 898 on Textile Road, Mrs. Vera greeted the 200 guests in a pink chiffon formal gown accented with silver sequins at the neckline. For her son's wedding Mrs. Akans chose to wear a formal chiffon gown of soft pink with a beaded neckline and cuffs. Both mothers were presented with corsages of white roses and pink tipped carnations.

The new Mrs. Akans, a 1972 graduate of Belleville High School, is employed as a secretary at Overseas National Airways at Willow Run Airport. Her husband graduated from Belleville High School in 1970 and is employed by the Ford Motor Co. at Rawsonville.

The Aug. 12 rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at their home on Potter Drive.

WIC plan comes to Sumpter Center

A high nutrition food program, called Women, Infants and Children (WIC) for pregnant women, nursing mothers and young children now is available to a substantial number of out-county residents.

Pregnant or breastfeeding women and infants or preschool children found to be nutritionally deficient will be eligible for the WIC supplementary food program, which is sponsored by the Wayne County Health Department.

Supplementary foods which are high in protein, iron and calcium such as milk, cheese, eggs, fruit juices, cereals and baby formula will be offered — without cost to selected individuals. Information about good diets and healthy foods also will be available.

Once a mother becomes eligible for WIC she will be issued coupons which will entitle her to buy the selected foods at any participating food store.

Individuals interested in participating in the program can call the South Health Center at 287-2400, or the Sumpter PRESCAD Center, 24101 Sumpter Road, at 697-9455.

Club reporters asked to please follow guidelines

It's nearly fall and time once again for women's clubs in the area to resume meetings.

In order that the Belleville Enterprise and Romulus Roman might print club news, activities and coming events accurately and promptly, we ask that the following guidelines be followed by publicity chairmen or press representatives.

Announcements of coming events will be accepted by telephone for the "It's a Date" column. Call Lee Smith at 697-9191 with information as to date, time, place, event, admission charge.

Follow-up items of club meetings, though, must be submitted in writing in order to save time and to avoid the chance of misspelling of proper names and misinformation.

Chairmen are not required to have the information in story form; that's our department. We DO ask that you remember to include who, what, where, when and why in the information.

Above, all, please include a telephone number for reference, one that can be reached during our working hours of 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Cooperation of those submitting information will result in more extensive coverage of your club.

Please be sure to include members' names when referring to chairmanships, convention attendance, speakers, etc. Names add personal and local interest to your club news.

Transcontinental biker covers 4,500 miles

By Mrs. Joseph Spring
699-4021

Don Brooks of West Huron River Drive, grandson of Mrs. Charles (Lena) Frigard of Church Street, has returned home after making a transcontinental Bicentennial bicycle trip of 4,500 miles across the United States.

Joining the group in Oregon, he left from Astoria on the Pacific and traveled eastward to Ocean City on the Atlantic, over a period of 74 days. During the trip they met many interesting people and saw many note worthy places. In one Kansas town, a group of Methodist ladies invited them in to their ice cream social.

In Washington, D. C., he visited his uncle, Jack Shyne; the Field Museum and the Cathedral; He also visited his aunt, Alice Bird, who was vacationing at Ocean City, and met his brother, Joe Brooks, who had been climbing the Rockies this summer, both returning home together after an interesting and exciting vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wilson and daughters of Roland Street were among relatives who attended the first reunion of the Wilson family held at the Willis Road home of Joe and Marlene Dapsi on Sept. 5. Among the 35 attending were the Rev. and Mrs. David Lee, special guests.

The oldest member present was Jeane Wilson of Willis Road, and the youngest was 15-month-old Tracee Harris, the daughter of Jess and Barbara Harris of Ypsilanti, the first great-grand child in the Wilson family.

Frank and Betty Harkai of Willis Road were the couple longest married — 33 years. Old family movies and games were enjoyed.

After having been a patient at Wayne County General Hospital for the past three weeks, Mrs. Paul Ulbick of Fourth Street returned home Sept. 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Robson of Denver, Colo., who have been spending the past four weeks with the former's brother, Louis and wife of Savage Road, and other relatives and friends around Belleville, left for their home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Budd of Expressway Drive recently entertained dinner guests in celebration of the birthday of their son, Larry. Present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Budd of Paw Paw, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Budd II of Howell, Betty Vander Muellen and Allan Sabatina of Oak Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Cominidi of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Potts and small daughter, Lori Ann, of St. Charles, Ill. have returned home after spending some time with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Potts of Wabash Street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Graham of Liberty Street have returned home after spending the past month visiting relatives in Canada. While gone they spent some time in Prince Albert, Sask., with Mr. Gramms sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hislop; with their grandson, Mark Malloy, who is a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, at Ituna, Sask., and with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Rock Malloy and family at Winnipeg, Man.

Dinner guests last Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Greashaber of West Columbia Avenue were the former's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bliss of Hamburg, and the latter's daughter, Mrs. Don Beck and three children who will be leaving soon to join her husband in London, England.

Holiday weekend guests at the Henry Deering home on West

Columbia Avenue were relatives Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Evans from Argyle, N. Y. and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Chamberlin, Glenn and Sandra, of Hamburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ransom of West Huron River Drive were guests the past three weeks of the former's parents, the Charles Ransoms, at their Gilbert Lake Cottage in Wild Rose, Wisc.

Mrs. James Goble is now convalescing at their home on East Wabash after having undergone major surgery recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Potts of West Wabash recently attended the wedding of their niece, Lori Potts, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Potts Jr., and Richard Robertson at the Lutheran Church in St. Clair Shores.

Mrs. Harold Klaiss of River Rouge and Mrs. Clayton Saunders of Liberty Street attended a get-together of the Saunders family at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Saunders in East Detroit over the Labor Day weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Greashaber and Robert Schaal of West Columbia

Avenue were Sunday dinner guests of the latter's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. James Smith and small daughter of Highland. The occasion was in celebration of Mrs. Greashaber's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clayton of Bedell Street and friends from Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Mann, enjoyed a week's vacation recently at a cottage near Oscoda.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quinley of Sumpter Road and the Larry Traskos family of Riggs Road spent the Labor Day weekend at Mecosta.

Mrs. Muriel Smith of Liberty Street attended a family get-together last week at the home of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Benjamin of Fowlerville. The occasion was in celebration of the homecoming of the latter's son, Gordon, who had been stationed in Germany for the past year.

After having attended the wedding of her grandson, Tim Smith, the son of the Donald Smiths of Quirk Road, Mrs. Cora Bradshaw of Bedell Street journeyed on to Mullet Lake where she spent the past four weeks at the Fielder cottage with Mrs. Mae Fielder.

Tim Smith and Christina Guster were united in marriage on Aug. 7, at the Congregational Church in Harrison. Many other relatives attended the wedding.

Mrs. Joseph Spring of Liberty Street returned home on Sept. 4, after accompanying her son, Herbert, his wife Beth, and daughter Kay, on a 3-weeks trip to Colorado. Making Denver their headquarters, they spent the weekends with Julie Spring, who is stationed at Lowry Air Force Base.

During the week they traveled to Rocky Mountain National Park, Estes Park, Mesa Verde National Park, Durango, Leadville, Central City where gold was first discovered in Colorado, Glenwood Springs, Aspen and Vail and camped in Swan Mountain Recreation Area.

Enroute home they visited the Amanas Seven Iowa Villages toured the Frontenac Winery at Paw Paw.

Hubert Gilbert of Celina, Tenn., formerly of Romulus, currently is recuperating at home after recent gallbladder surgery. The Gilbert's children and grandchildren made the trip southward to see their father.

MR. AND MRS. DARRELL L. CARDWELL

Attendants wear rainbow colors at summer wedding

A rainbow theme was chosen by Lynn R. Beesley of Inkster for her summer marriage to Darrell K. Cardwell of Romulus which took place at Northline Baptist Church in Taylor.

Pastor Gerald Stokes presided at the double ring rite before some 300 assembled relatives and friends. Barbara Baker was organist and Roger Bise the soloist.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Beesley of 26333 Colgate, Inkster, and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell L. Cardwell of 12400 Harrison, Romulus, are parents of the young couple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a white polysheer creation patterned in the Victorian mode with a high lace neckline, clear bishop sleeves and a chapel train with a deep flounce trimmed with lace.

Her elbow-length illusion veil was edged with daisy lace and held by a Victorian crown of lace and pearls. Rainbow colored carnations and red roses were arranged in the shape of a cross to complete her bridal finery.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Deborah Seibel of Taylor. Her A-line gown of polyvoile was in lavender with a high-rise waistline, sheer puffed sleeves with lace-edged cuffs and a lace trimmed V-neckline. Her accessories included a soft-brimmed white straw hat and bouquet of lavender and white daisies.

The five bridesmaids donned the same style gowns in blue, mint green, pink, peach and turquoise. Each was escorted up the aisle by one of the groomsmen who wore white tails and shirts to match their respective partners' dresses.

Kevin Cardwell, youngest brother of the bridegroom, was paired with Nancy Beesley of Inkster, youngest sister of the bride; Donald Wakefield of Rockwood, and Lori Hazelwood of Taylor, cousin of the bride, were partners; Kimberly Cardwell of Romulus, sister of the bridegroom, was with Mark Beesley of Inkster, brother of the bride; Kathy Beesley of Inkster, sister of the bride, walked with Kenneth Cardwell of Romulus, another brother; and Millie Hursin of Dearborn Heights was escorted by Steve Johnson of Taylor.

Flowergirl, six-year old Sherry Winkler carried a basket of multi-colored daisies and baby's breath and wore a yellow dotted swiss organdy frock. Four-year old Scott Seibel carried out the duties of ringbearer.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother, Kerry Cardwell of Romulus. Ushers were Richard Johnson of Romulus and Franklin Johnson of Welston, Ohio, cousins of the bridegroom, and Brian Hazelwood of Taylor, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Beesley chose for her daughter's wedding a formal gown of variegated blue polyester with a matching long-sleeved jacket. The bridegroom's mother appeared in a pink chiffon gown. Both were honored with red rose corsages.

Following their reception in the church hall, the newlyweds left for the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn and a 7-day honeymoon in St. Louis and Springfield, Mo.

A graduate of Robichaud High School in Dearborn Heights, the bride was employed by Michigan Mutual Insurance of Detroit prior to her marriage.

Her husband is a graduate of Romulus High School and Baptist Bible College of Springfield, Mo. where he currently is doing graduate work while employed by Davison's Red Cross Shoes.

ANN ARBOR — The Tuesday Nite Singles, a non-profit organization which meets from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight every Tuesday for dancing and refreshments, will have Frank Venice play for the evening of Sept. 21. Sessions are held at Roma Hall at the corner of Liberty Street and Stadium Boulevard. All singles, 25 and over are cordially invited.

ABWA awards two scholarships

The Huron Valley Charter Chapter of Ypsilanti, American Business Women's Assoc., (ABWA) held its monthly meeting at the Tin Lizzie in Belleville with John Czubaj, a representative of the Dale Carnegie Institute of Southfield, as guest speaker.

Evelyn Bachman, who is retired from the Ford Motor Co. after 33½ years, was the vocational speaker.

Members of the Embers Chapter of Ann Arbor were guests for the evening. They invited the group to their fashion show by Hadley's which will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 13 at Weber's Inn of Ann Arbor.

Scholarships were awarded to Rae L. McKinnon of Detroit who is attending Western Michigan University and majoring in special education for the mentally retarded. A music minor, Miss McKinnon is on the Dean's List.

Receiving her second scholarship from the club was Mary Ann Rickelmann of Ypsilanti, a nursing major at Madonna College in Livonia.

Willene Taylor, who chairs the ways and means committee, distributed 18 cases of candies and caramels to her helpers and is ordering a second shipment. The Huron Valley Charter Chapter Cookbooks are still on sale for $2.25. Contact Mazie Isaacson at 697-9357 to place an order.

Widowhood - Adjusting to it.

There are so many excellent texts and reference books relating to the adjustments which surviving widows and widowers must make. It might be helpful to list here some of them. We recommend that you file this column away for such time as you may find it necessary to suggest a book for a friend or relative (or for your own uses). These reference books are not overly technical and they will help you understand better the transitional stages of widowhood. There's been much written of late about how to facilitate healthy mental and physical adjustments with the loss of a loved one. There are just a few of them.

Classes to train hunters

Classes on the proper use of firearms will be conducted by the Wayne County Sportsman's Club this year.

Classes run on Saturdays and Sundays during the early fall at the club grounds, located off of Inkster Road between Pennsylvania and Sibley roads in Huron Township.

Cost of the class, a requirement for any youngster under the age of 16 who intends to hunt with firearms, is $2.

Registration for each class runs between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. Saturdays.

To qualify for a hunter safety certificate, youngsters must attend both Saturday and Sunday gun safety classes.

Information on the program can be obtained by calling either Sherman Lambley at 782-2895 or by writing him at 23145 Merriman Road, New Boston 48164.

Worker permits offered

Workers less than 18 years of age are required to have working permits by the Department of Labor unless they are employed through their high school co-op program.

For students in the Romulus Community Schools needing such permits, they are available through the high school's Job Placement Office from 9 to 11 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

For those students who are unable to apply for work permits at that time, appointments can be made by contacting Cathy Ward at 941-4420.

Fair fun

When it comes to fairs, everyone loves them and an annual event for Wayne County has proven to be a crowd pleaser this year. The Wayne County 4-H Fair, held late last month at the 4-H Fairgrounds in Van Buren Township, attracted not only contestants and their entries — ranging from animals to agriculture — but paraders and animal lovers as well. The start of the fair was a parade through the streets of Belleville with everything from floats to a covered wagon passing in review during the event. There even was one young marcher who donned a straw hat and wore stars to throw sweet treats to the parade watchers. During the fair 3-year-old Robby Taylor of VanBuren Township had a friendly encounter with a goat, and Mary Herring of Judd Road, Belleville, helped feed some of the animals at the air. — ANP photos.

Rep. Ford supports forced retirement ban

The congressman from Western Wayne County is attempting to correct what he believes is an evil of the present system of employment. Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) is banding together with 50 other congressmen to co-sponsor legislation prohibiting forced retirement because of age.

The legislation, being sponsored by both Democrats and Republicans, would correct what Ford believes is a flaw in present federal legislation against age discrimination which ends the federal jurisdiction for a person after he passes the age of 65. "This bill is aimed specifically at protecting persons who now are required to retire at age 65." "Each year, some 4.5 million senior citizens are the victims of mandatory retirement at this arbitrary age category. "Our legislation would not bar labor agreements to permit or encourage early retirement as a means of creating or preserving jobs for younger workers. "It merely would make it illegal to forcibly retire those who have the ability and desire to continue work." According to Ford, some 86 percent of all Americans are against mandatory retirement. "Our legislation is supported by many labor unions, by the American Medical Association, the National Council of Senior Citizens and numerous other groups," Ford said. "They all agree that forced retirement threatens the financial security of many workers, and most certainly cripples the national economy. Forcing skilled persons to retire at a given age reduced our Gross National Product by some $10 billion annually." Under existing federal law, job discrimination on the basis of age covers only persons up to the age of 65. "There are some people who want to retire at this age, and some who should retire at this age," Ford said. "But there are many who are perfectly capable of working beyond age 65, and who need to keep working for their physical, mental or economic well-being. "It is illogical, unfair and economically unsound to make such men and women give up their careers and to deprive our economy of their services."

Seniors' service

Members of the Romulus and Van Buren Township senior citizen community were in attendance at a special interdenominational church service held at the St. Aloysius Catholic Church in Romulus as part of a "seniors' day out" worship opportunity and picnic sponsored by the church. One observer at the service described it as an extremely emotional experience as senior citizens, many of whom have been shut off from the mainstream of their religious life, were brought out to worship in public. — ANP photo.

Kensington Metropark opens Children's Farm

A new attraction at Kensington Metropark for the younger set now is open for business.

The park's Children's Farm is open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and cost $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children 12 years and under. The price is in addition to the parks daily of annually entry fee.

Attractions at the "working farm" include the historical barn which has been renovated into an arts and crafts center and general store. Old time farm implements are on exhibit.

Also on the farm premises is the Feed Bag, where beverages and snacks are available; the Pioneer Inn, where snacks, luncheon and dinners are offered; the Corral, a regulation - sized horse show arena equipped with judging stands and grandstand seating; pony rides for children which cost 50 cents each; Swan rides, swan shaped boats that seat four persons and are self-propelled which cruise the pond and cost 50 cents per person; and farm animals such as sheep, pigs, cows, a mule, Belgian horse, chickens, and rabbits. Additional information of the farm is available by contacting at 2100 W. Buno Road, Lincoln Friend, general manager of the facility, by calling 685-9105.

Residents join 'Team Work'

Three residents of the Belleville-Romulus Community residents are participating in a major NATO maritime exercise, "Team Work '76".

Navy Chief Boatswain's Mate Lawrence G. Kangas, 29, whose wife, Diana, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll W. Bush of New Boston, Navy Radioman Seaman

Appren. David G. Hood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Grimm of 40085 Robbe, Belleville, and Marine Sgt. Wayne E. Crain, 24, the son of Mrs. Della E. Crain of 23648 Crawford, Romulus, are taking part in the military maneuvers.

"Team Work '76" units are operating in the North Atlantic Ocean, English Channel and Baltic during the 2-week exercise. In addition, a major combined amphibious landing is being made in Norway, with a secondary amphibious landing in Denmark.

The primary objectives of the exercise are to test and improve the combat readiness of the allied forces and to test plans for the defense of Western Europe. Participating units will evaluate increased standardization of doctrines, equipment and armaments among NATO forces, plus test command control procedures for coordinated action by NATO land, sea and air forces.

Sgt. Crain is serving as a member of the Headquarters of the 4th Marine Amphibious Brigade, while Chief Boatswain's Mate Kangas is a crewmember aboard the oiler USS Kalamazoo and Seaman Appren. Hood aboard the frigate USS Edward McDonnell.

Hood also is a 1975 graduate of Belleville High School, having joined the Navy in August 1975. His ship is homeported in Mayport, Fla.

Crain is a 1970 graduate of Southgate High School. A 1972 enlistee in the Marine Corps, his unit is based at Norfolk, Va., while Kangas, a former student at Calumet High School in Calumet, Mich., joined the Navy in 1964. His ship also is homeported in Mayport, Fla.

Partygoers

The end of a summer reading program at the Romulus Public Library brought out the best in the young participants who donned their best Bicentennial garb for a closing party. Winning honors for their patriotic garb for the party were Marva Hopewell (from left); Natalie Higgins, third; Eddie Myers Jr., first, and Deanne Maciolek, second.—ANP photo.

11. Motion by McAnally, supported by Lee, adopt resolution 76-654;

RESOLUTION 76-654

WHEREAS: The City of Romulus supports the idea of providing a favorable business climate in the State of Michigan; and

WHEREAS: The state legislature has provided a means whereby the business climate may be specifically improved by a city by the adoption of Public Act 198, Michigan Acts of 1974, and;

WHEREAS: The City of Romulus believes that utilization of the investment design, to, at minimum; maintain existing employment opportunities within the City of Romulus; and;

WHEREAS: Stimulate economic development, encourage renovation, modernization, and rehabilitation facilities in the City of Romulus; and;

WHEREAS: The City of Romulus was petitioned by the Kelsey-Hayes Corporation on August 10, 1976 to establish an Industrial Development District, and in accordance with the provisions of Public Act 198 of 1974, a Public Hearing to investigate reasons for said establishment and to hear any objections to such establishment; and;

WHEREAS: The City Council ordered an investigation to determine the actual obsolescence of the industrial property that is to be included in said district; and;

WHEREAS: The Public Hearing held September 7, 1976 produced no objections to said establishment and the obsolescence investigation of said, and;

WHEREAS: The obsolescence investigation made findings as follows:

1. The office area contains obsolescence do to design

2. The factory was originally designed to manufacture jet engines. Today the plant ceiling height is one-half the required height under present day specifications. The plant contains a four (4) foot thick reinforced test area, all of which is wasted space compounding the obsolescence problem and prohibiting full utilization of existing plant facilities.

3. The preponderance of the presses were installed prior to World War II, and are dangerously short of present day standards.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: By the City Council of the City of Romulus based on the foregoing Public Hearing, and obsolescence investigation that there does, in fact, exist a condition at the Kelsey-Hayes facility wherein at least fifty (50 percent) percent of the state equalized valuation of property within the proposed district is obsolete, and the City Council of the City of Romulus does herewith establish a Plant Rehabilitation District whose boundaries are as follows:

Warehouse may be used for cells

Plan would meet need for more jail space

The chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has proposed a plan to expedite an increase in county jail capacity and to move closer to meeting a projected 1980 need for 2,000 jail cells.

John Barr proposed that the county acquire a former J. L. Hudson Co. warehouse and apply for up to $17 million in federal public works funds to renovate it into a 400-cell detention facility.

He stressed that this facility would be in addition to the new 400-cell downtown jail facility for which construction millage was approved by the voters last May. Contracts for construction of the voter-approved facility may be let as early as October.

He made his proposal as Sheriff William Lucas reported that all available jail cells soon would be occupied. On Sept. 2, a panel of three Wayne circuit judges turned down a request by Lucas that the panel increase by 48 the 720-prisoner limit set for the present jail.

In proposing that the county acquire the Hudson's warehouse for use as a jail, Barr noted that in 1971 outside consultants projected a need for 2,000 jail cells by 1980. The voter-approved new construction, plus the present jail, will provide only 1,120 permanent jail cells.

"The space we now have is full," he added. "The additional space we have planned is inadequate and won't be ready for approximately three years. We must take positive steps immediately to provide the extra prisoner housing."

One strong reason for considering the warehouse is because it would be ready to house prisoners within one year, compared to the 3-year time frame for the new facility.

Barr made his proposal in a resolution to be considered by the county Board of Commissioners. Earlier this year, the Board of Commissioners twice rejected acquiring the warehouse, opting instead for the new construction advocated by Lucas. The federally-sponsored National Clearinghouse for Criminal Justice Programs had given the proposed warehouse renovation a positive evaluation.

Barr emphasized he was advocating both the new construction and the warehouse conversion at this time.

"When we talked of the Hudson building before, the federal public works funding was not available," he added. "Several conditions now exist that make this plan a practical, sensible way to meet the most important crisis facing our metropolitan area today. I'm convinced that if any other building in this town were possible and suggested, we would jump at this plan."

Barr said it would cost no more than $3.5 million to purchase the J. L. Hudson facility, located at Madison and Brush in downtown Detroit.

Acquisition costs are not eligible for the federal funds. Therefore, Barr said, he is proposing that the funds for acquisition come out of general county revenues or the $35 million to be generated by the voter-approved 5-year levy of a half mill for jail construction and operation. The new jail, to be located at Beaubien and Macomb, is estimated to cost $22 million.

Jail prisoners are being housed temporarily in three barracks at Detroit House of Correction. A building on the grounds of Wayne County General Hospital is being renovated for 250 prisoners.

Hockey play opens for RHA members

The season for Romulus' hockey players has begun. Practice has started for the annual Romulus Hockey Association campaign, but players still are welcome to join the program. Information on joining the hockey program can be obtained by calling Sharon Genovese at 729-0703, Jeff Loez at 941-4609 or Dave Davidson at 941-4627. This season, the hockey association will be skating at the Ice Box Arena, 21902 Telegraph Road, near West Road, in Brownstown Township.

Familiar face aids United Way

A Romulus man is one of several people pictured this year on the United Way of Michigan poster.

John Johnson, a retired steel worker and a transplant recipient who received help from the Kidney Foundation of Michigan, is pictured on the poster requesting donations for the United Way along with Ray Carl Jr. of Alma and Raymond Tucker of Saginaw, a retired UAW member.

All three males pictured on the poster are recipients of kidneys found for them through the Kidney Foundation of Michigan, an agency fund through the United Way.

In addition, Mrs. James J. Schrauben of Grand Ledge, is pictured. Mrs. Schrauben's husband is undergoing kidney analysis through the United Way, three times each week. Schrauben is a member of Laborers Local 998 in Lansing.

Preps kick off '76 grid campaign

5,000 fans to see Belleville, Wayne clash

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

If you're a high school football fan, you'll get your money's worth this season.

Nearly half of the teams in The Associated Newspapers' area are considered legitimate title contenders in their respective leagues.

And leading the list is none other than Livonia Franklin, the defending Class A state football champs. Coach Armend Vigna and his Patriots, who posted an enviable 10-1 won-lost record en route to an unprecedented third consecutive Northwest Suburban Conference title and the inaugural state championship, are back in full-force to defend their grid image.

However, Westland John Glenn, whose only loss last year was to the state champ, has enough holdovers from a year ago to make that league race an interesting one.

Moreover, Wayne Memorial, handcuffed by injuries a year ago, appears to have the horses to run for the Great Lakes 8 Conference title, while Belleville, Wayne's first opponent this year, is being touted as a serious contender for the tough Suburban 8 Conference championship. Also in the latter race will be Plymouth Salem, a team that won the mythical state title two years ago and is ready to take its place among the top powers.

Franklin's first test of the '76 campaign will come Friday night at Midland Dow, a team that has aspirations of winning the Class A state title this year.

New head coach has tough job at Plymouth Canton

Plymouth Canton has been making headlines in recent months, but those headlines have been aimed at coaching changes in football.

Now the changes have been completed — head coach Jim Muneio and his staff resigned and the man-on-the-spot is Dave Schuele who has been named the new head coach, and his assistants — Mark LaPointe, Dave Thomann and Eddy Scott.

Schuele, 41, was an assistant football coach the past seven years at Highland Park High School. He brings a new spirit to Canton which has finished the last two seasons with identical 3-6 records.

"No, we're not rebuilding," said Schuele, "that's a cop-out to hide behind. I'm looking for a good season, a winning one."

Schuele's reference "to rebuilding" alludes to the phrase used by coaches during years when their teams have lost most of their veterans and feel they don't have title contenders.

Schuele, born and raised in football country — Columbus, Ohio — will groom his teams to use a balanced attack with the multiple-set offense at the expense of the passing game.

"We like to run," he said, "just like they do in Columbus. We'll probably pass 25 percent of the time."

To carry out his plans, Schuele has a core of 14 lettermen returning off of last year's squad. That squad will be unveiled Friday night at Livonia Bentley.

"We have a small (in size) crew," Schuele said, "so we'll be operating on quickness."

"In comparison, Bentley is big and they have some big backs and we're going to have to work awfully hard to get a piece of them."

Schuele tags Farmington Harrison, "as the team" to beat in the league (Western Six), but is quick to point out "to not overlook Northville, which will be very good, and Livonia Churchill."

"And, though Churchill lost practically all of its first string through graduation, they always come up with a fine club over there," Schuele added.

Schuele has two quarterback prospects in Mark Perkins and Doug Smith.

Perkins, a senior, is recuperating from a broken rib suffered during a water-skiing mishap. He'll probably get the nod to start Friday night, despite the injury.

The 6-0, 170-pound senior, Perkins has fair speed, but throws well, according to Schuele.

Canton will have experience in its offensive backfield with the return of fullback Jerry Simons, a 185-pound, junior who is an outstanding runner. Simons will double as a linebacker on defense. Mark Hutton, who sat out his junior year because of a shoulder injury, is due back as a halfback.

Schuele is looking at Gerald Droucher, 145-pound senior, and Mike Meadows, a 5-10, 160-pound senior, two solid ball-carriers.

Pushing the starters are running-backs Darryl Ramscur and Steve Barnes, who saw limited action a year ago.

The offensive line will be anchored by senior John Young, a holdover from a year ago. The 5-11, 205-pound athlete is the Chiefs' captain. Co-captains this year will be Tom Powell, and Droucher.

The Chiefs will probably go with Mathews Norris, a 6-1, 190-pound senior, and Pat Francis, a 5-11, 180-pound, also a senior at the tackles, while Dave McIntosh (6-1, 160) and Ron Craig (6-1, 170) will hold down the end posts.

Canton managed to get in a couple of scrimmages last week, taking on Ann Arbor Pioneer and Plymouth Salem. Schuele was pleased with his defense, "but the offense has a lot of work ahead of it."

What does Schuele consider a good year for his team?

That's difficult to say — we're working to win and I'm looking for a good season," Schuele replied.

And with most of the Western Six Conference teams stocked with experience, a winning season may elude Schuele in his inaugural season at Canton.

Sports

Dow has produced some of the finest prep gridders and cagers in the state. This year's grid edition is also expected to be tough.

More than 5,000 fans are expected to be on hand to greet Belleville and Wayne Memorial gridders Friday night. Wayne, host for the opener, (kick-off 8 p.m.) has a stock of veteran gridders returning off of last year's team that wound up 4-5 on the year.

Wayne eked out a 25-19 overtime decision at Belleville a year ago, ruining Coach Pat Stokes' debut as head coach. The Tigers will be out for revenge.

John Glenn will enter the new grid year with a new coach, Jerry Lutri, who moved up to the head coaching job after Lloyd Carr resigned to take a coaching job with Eastern Michigan University.

Lutri will receive his baptismal from Garden City West, a strong contender in the Tri-River Conference. The Westlanders will host the opening meeting.

Meanwhile, Livonia Churchill, stripped of its seasoned players — most of the first string offense and defense has graduated — face formidable Fordson for their opener.

Coach Ken Kaestner and the Chargers breezed to a 5-0 record to capture the Western Six Conference title last year, but the Livonians are expecting trouble in the form of a veteran Farmington Harrison and Northville squad.

Plymouth Canton, which won only one of its five starts in the Western Six, has drafted David Schuele as its head coach to replace Jim Muneio who resigned.

Schuele is a veteran of seven football campaigns as an assistant coach at Highland Park.

Salem's Tom Moshiner, hampered by injuries to key players last year, is looking to better his 4-3 Suburban 8 Conference record but improved teams like Belleville, Dearborn and a strong Edsel Ford contingent, along with powerful Trenton, could make it rough on the Rocks.

Romulus starts the year at Detroit DePorres where Coach Tom Baldwin predicts a battle.

Pleased with his defense that allowed only three first downs in a 2½-hour scrimmage last week, Baldwin is hoping that the defense will hold until the revamped offense jells.

"We will be more ball-controlled conscious this year," Baldwin said, "we have some players who can run the ball well."

Over at Cherry Hill where Jerry Pawloski is preparing to begin his third season as head coach, the Spartans are busy patching up holes created by graduation.

Pawloski feels he doesn't have a contender this season, but adds "his team is one or two years away from turning things around."

Cherry Hill opens the curtains a day later, on Saturday, when they take on a rebuilding Annapolis crew from Dearborn Heights.

Coach Arnice James will be fielding one of his "smallest teams in recent years" at Inkster High and will be hard-pressed to stop a loaded Murray-Wright team in their opener Friday afternoon in Detroit.

UD annual cage clinic date is set

The University of Detroit's fourth annual Basketball Coaches Clinic has been scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 25 in the U-D Memorial Building.

Coach Dick Vitale, the coordinator of the clinic, announced that college coaches from the midwest will join the clinic staff this year, including Ray Scott, head coach at Eastern Michigan University and former NBA Coach of the Year with the Detroit Pistons.

Registration for the all-day event (9 a.m. to 5 p.m.) is now being accepted by the U-D athletic department. Registration in advance is $20 while at the door is $25. The fee includes admission to all lectures and also includes lunch.

The University of Detroit Coaches Clinic has been very successful over the past three years, with approximately 150 area coaches attending the program. Top high school and college coaches have been part of the program each year.

For more information, please phone 927-1156.

Westlander kicks for record

Senior kicking specialist Bill Kelley, an ex-Westland John Glenn grid star, set Wayne State University records a year ago with 17 consecutive extra-point successes, 30-extra-point kicks for the season and 45 kicking points.

Kelley goes into the season with a string of three straight games with at least one field goal kicked after toeing four in the last three games.

His successes last year were 19, 35 (twice), 38 and 42 yards, respectively. The longest was at Ferris State.

The 'Bird' is coming

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' super sensational rookie pitcher, and John Hiller, who won the Tiger of the Year award as a reliever, will be signing autographs Sunday in Belleville.

The two popular Tiger baseball stars will make their appearances at Little Caesar's Restaurant, 4111 Huron River Drive, between 5:30 to 8 p.m.

Westlander to head Riverview schools' athletic programs

The Riverview Community School District will put to use the vast sports knowledge of former Wayne-Westland Board of Education Trustee Bob Eisiminger.

Eisiminger, 56, was appointed earlier this month as the athletic director of the Riverview Community School District. He is also an elementary school principal in that downriver community.

"I'm returning to my first love - sports," said Eisiminger, a former St. Louis Cardinal ball player. "It will be a good challenge."

Eisiminger and his wife, Genevieve, make their home in Westland. One of the Eisimingers' five children, Bob Jr., is presently playing football for Northern Michigan University after an outstanding prep career at Westland John Glenn.

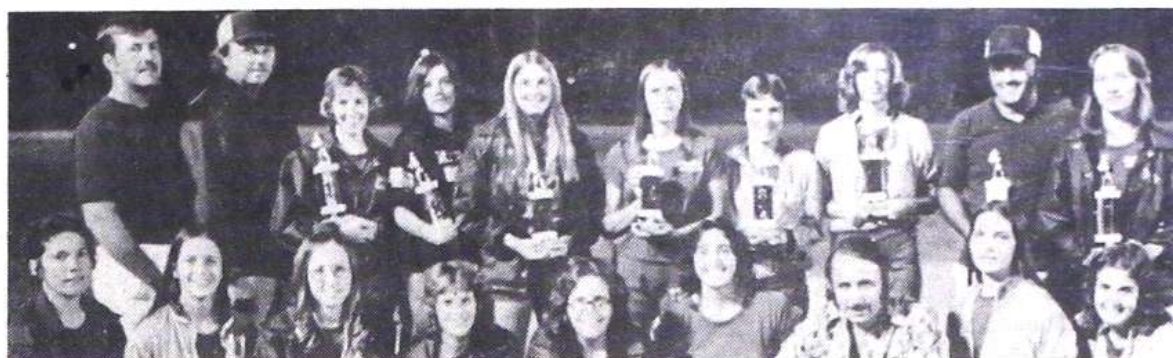

Eisiminger served as a trustee on the Wayne-Westland Community School District Board of Education in the late sixties. He also coached the American Legion Wayne Post III to its only 16th District Baseball Championship.

As athletic director at Riverview, Eisiminger will have the responsibility of mapping the myriad of boys and girls athletic programs in the district. The high school (Riverview) is also affiliated with the Great Lakes 8 Conference which includes Wayne Memorial.

Eisiminger earned collegiate sports letters in football, baseball and basketball in Missouri and later played for the Cardinals (1939). His professional career was interrupted by the Second World War when he served as Chief Athletic Specialist in the U.S. Navy.

He returned to professional baseball with the Cardinals, a career which lasted 10 years and also managed minor league clubs in the Cardinal and Philadelphia Athletics farm systems.

State runner-up

Studio Lounge, which won the Westland Parks and Recreation's Class A women's softball championship this season, brought the curtains down on the 1976 campaign at Grand Rapids where it finished second in the state finals to Ann Arbor. The state runners-up compiled a 13-1 won-lost record during the regular season. Members of the team, sporting championship trophies awarded by the Westland Parks and Recreation Department, include

Studio Lounge finishes 2nd at State Tourney

Studio Lounge, the reigning Westland Parks and Recreation Women's Class A softball champs, came within one victory of capturing the coveted state championship.

Manager Don Terflinger's crew lost to an Ann Arbor contingent and was forced to settle for the runners-up trophy.

"This is the first time any Westland team has finished that high in the state tournament," said Terflinger. "I'm proud of our team. They played very well."

Studio lost the state title to the Ann Arbor Pacers who won a close 6-5 contest in their first confrontation of the two-game elimination tourney, then beat the local contingent 7-1 in the finals.

Studio's road to the state finals began with an easy 7-0 forfeit win of a "no show" Pontiac team.

The second game matched Studio against Mt. Clemens, Sheehy's Mobil.

Studio scored 11 runs in the game, led by Vicki Pier's home run and single, bringing in three RBIs.

Becky Brown and Karen McElyea both scored two singles, which chased in two runs each. Sheehy's Mobil scored only twice in the game.

In Game No. 3, Studio scored five runs while St. Clair Shores, Warren Bank scored 3. Studio scored four runs in the first inning on a single by Becky Brown, a home run by Annette Belanger, a single by Pat Olson and a home run by Sharon Hodder.

Group wants jr. high sports to be restored

If a group of "concerned citizens" drum up enough support, there could be junior high athletics in Romulus this year.

The group will meet Wed., Sept. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Romulus High School auditorium to discuss means of raising money for the junior high athletic programs.

The Romulus Board of Education was forced to make economic cutbacks in the school district and one of those led to the elimination of junior high athletics this year.

Anyone who is interested in restoring the programs is urged to attend the meetings.

Preacher gets an ace

A Wayne preacher and an out-of-state visitor had one thing in common last week — both scored holes-in-one.

The preacher, Rev. Waldon Spracklen of the Cavalry Baptist Church, fired his ace at Fellow's Creek Golf Course on Friday where he drove a 135-yarder in the 5 hole using a 9-iron.

It was the first ace ever for Rev.

Spracklen who finished the round with a 43.

Then, Bernard Blank, a former Wayne resident presently living in Florida, pulled in with his first ace, shooting the elusive hole-in-one at Don's Executive Golf Course in Belleville.

Blank, who finished the day with a 66, aced the 15th hole, a 118-yarder with a 9-iron.

Belleville PPK date is set

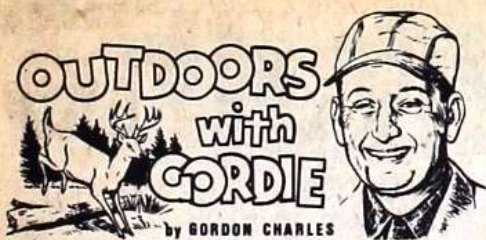

Registration for the area annual Punt, Pass & Kick competition for youngsters 8 through 13 years of age will remain open through September 18. The competition is sponsored by Atchinson Ford and the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Registration blanks and local competition details are available at all participating Ford dealerships.

Competition begins at the local level Sept. 18 and subsequently moves to Zone, District, Area, Divisional and National levels. No entrance fee or special equipment is required. There is no body contact and participating does not impair a youth's amateur standing.

Youngsters, accompanied by a parent or guardian, may register for PPK at any participating Ford Dealer.

The Belleville PPK competition is scheduled for Saturday September 18 at the Belleville High School athletic field, starting at 9:00 A.M.

Should Great Lakes fish start taking vitamins? Anybody who has ever latched onto a fighting mad chinook or one of the other lake-dwellers is probably convinced that vitamins is the last thing these finny battlers need. It could come to that, though.

The question of giving fish vitamins goes back at least six years. It was then that biologists for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service were studying channel catfish in Missouri. They were puzzled why catfish grown on fish farms in that state were developing curvature of the spine. It was so bad that, in extreme cases, it broke the fish's back and stunted its growth as much as one-third.

It took the biologists until last year to discover there was a direct link with toxaphene residues in the water there. Toxaphene is a pesticide widely used on cotton crops and it was obviously finding its way into the catfish waters. Concentrations as low as 37 parts per trillion in the water were found to have serious long-term effects on the catfish.

Toxaphene, incidentally, was widely used in Michigan about 15 or 20 years ago by what was then our state Department of Conservation. Fisheries biologists here found it was a great chemical to clean out the entire population of fish from a lake before others were then reintroduced in a balanced population. Only thing, the chemical was so powerful in some types of water that a number of lakes stayed too "hot" to replant. Several in the Upper Peninsula remained barren for at least seven years before the toxaphene finally disappeared! Today our fisheries biologists use rotenone for this same purpose. It isn't perfect but the long-term effects are not present, either.

Back to those USFWS biologists in Missouri, though. Earlier this year they discovered for the first time the specific role that vitamin C plays in various parts of a fish's body. One major function is to aid in forming the base on which bone develops. Calcium and phosphates are deposited in the body to eventually help form a skeleton. When there is not enough vitamin C the mineral ratio is increased and the fish's backbone becomes brittle. It eventually snaps and internal bleeding can result. If the fish lives its growth is badly stunted.

The biologists also learned that under these conditions, the fish lose their ability to heal wounds or regenerate tissue. Vitamin C is also an essential nutrient of the liver and is used to help detoxify poisonous substances in the environment. Without it, fish can't respond very well against stress situations which may kill them, too.

Where catfish were chemically exposed to toxaphene residues, even in trace amounts, most of the vitamin C was diverted to the liver where it is used to neutralize the effect of toxaphene. So much was diverted that not enough was left for other necessary processes.

Brook trout exhibit the same symptoms when exposed to toxaphene traces, so fortunately it is no longer used in Michigan. Research in Missouri, however, may eventually give us clues for fighting pollutants in our Great Lakes. And maybe vitamins will be the eventual answer!

THIS IS UNIBANK.

One Account At NBD For All Your Normal Banking Needs.

You can write all the checks you want without a service charge.

No-charge checking is a big part of the UniBank account. It's yours simply by opening a $500 savings account. Or by maintaining a $200 minimum or $500 average monthly balance in your UniBank checking account.

Either way, you can plan on saving important dollars in service charges.

Your savings account will be earning you money while it's saving you money.

When you put your savings into a UniBank account at NBD, they'll not only save you important dollars in checking account service charges, they'll also earn you the highest interest that any bank pays on savings.

7-1/2% on Investment Savings Certificates with a maturity of 6 years in amounts of $1000 or more.

7-1/4% on Investment Savings Certificates with a maturity of 4 years in amounts of $1000 or more.

6-1/2% on Investment Savings Certificates with a maturity of 30, 36 or 42 months in amounts of $1000 or more.

Interest on your savings at NBD is compounded quarterly, and on any Investment Savings Certificate of $5,000 or more, you can receive your interest in the form of monthly checks.

You get the convenience of banking 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

As a customer of National Bank of Detroit, you'll have the convenience of being able to bank at any of our more than 100 offices—not just the office where you opened your account. That includes our 78 Drive-In Offices open until 7:30 every week-night, and from 9 to 1 every Saturday.

And as a UniBank customer, you're automatically entitled to our NBD 24-Hour Banker card.

It lets you get cash from your UniBank checking or savings account anytime of the day or night at 27 locations all over town. You can also use your 24-Hour Banker card to make deposits, transfers—even get a cash advance on your NBD Master Charge card.

There's also Checkmate and Master Charge.

Among the UniBank services is our Checkmate line-of-credit. At NBD, we have always maintained high credit standards, counselling our customers to borrow only for worthwhile purposes and to repay loan obligations as soon as they could. Checkmate is totally in keeping with this tradition. It is designed specifically to allow you to take advantage of outstanding opportunities and to meet unforeseen needs. At the same time, it provides a safeguard against the charges that banks commonly impose for over-drawing your account.

When you qualify for Checkmate, you have a way to write yourself a loan simply by writing a check. Checkmate also offers a feature that we call Simple Interest; you pay interest only on the amount of your daily loan balance—nothing more.

When you sign up for UniBank, you can also apply for NBD Master Charge.

When there's a Master Charge card in your purse or wallet, you enjoy extra buying power and greater shopping convenience. Yet there's no finance charge on your purchases so long as you pay for them in full each month.

And you get the security of Michigan's biggest bank.

Come in and sign up for UniBank; you'll walk away with the good feeling of knowing your savings are safely inside a bank with a reputation for sound financial management, and more assets than any other bank in Michigan.

If you'd like this security behind your money, and the convenience of being a customer of Michigan's biggest bank, why not open a UniBank account now?

As you can see, for a $500 savings account, you get a lot more than a $500 savings account.

Making banking better for you.

You should know that by Federal Regulations a substantial penalty is required for early withdrawal on time deposits.

Schoolcraft to provide test for area harriers

Ted Unold, who was named to the All-American High School Track Team last June, will lead Westland John Glenn into Saturday's 11th running of the Schoolcraft College Cross Country Invitational.

Unold, one of the best prep milers in the country, has won all three of his cross country starts this year, leading Coach Jerry Szukaitis's Rockets to a 25-30 victory over Garden City West and to a second place team finish at the Early Bird Invitational hosted by Lincoln Park.

Though Unold finished first against Adrian, the Westlanders dropped their opener 25-32 at the Lenawee Country Club last week.

Cherry Hill will defend its team championship at Schoolcraft, but Coach Joe Grasley and his Spartans are expected to encounter heavy opposition from area rivals Livonia Churchill, Garden City East and Wayne Memorial which are in the 20-team field.

The three-mile race will begin at 10:30 a.m. on the Cass Benton Park course along Edward Hines Drive in Northville. Meet director John Carroll looks for a wide-open competition.

"Cherry Hill has lost six of its seven top runners so they'll be in trouble," said Carroll. "I look for Farmington, last year's runners-up to be in the thick of the title run."

Also back is Northville's Dave Gould, who won the individual title a year ago when he posted a 16:30.3 for the winning time. Along with Unold, contenders will include Kevin Kitz (Garden City East), Vic Wietecha (Churchill), Dave Good (North Farmington), Scott Kleam and Doug Vorbeck of Plymouth Salem and Livonia Bentley, respectively.

Twenty-two teams are entered in this year's invitational.

"The meet will provide most coaches with a good look at their talent as well as the competition they'll be up against this fall," Carroll said.

TED UNOLD
'All-American'

In the Early Bird meet Glenn finished in a two-way tie for second with Allen Park, each scoring 71 points. The runners-up trophy was awarded the Westlanders on the basis of their fourth man's finish.

Fordson claimed the championship, garnering 48 points. Following the leaders were Schafer (110), Dearborn Heights Riverside (142), Romulus (163), St. Alphonsus (176), Lincoln Park (188), Wyandotte (194) and Riverview (240).

Unold won individual honors with a 15:04 effort over the three-mile course. Teammates Curt Cretal and Mark Johnson finished ninth and 13th, respectively, in times of 15:53 and 16:09.

Other Glenn finishers included Maury Bradshaw (22), Randy Discher (26) and Ron McNally (30). "We did all right," said Szukaitis, "We have one man put with an injury and hope to have him back soon."

Ailing is veteran Mike McCuiker who sustained an ankle injury in practice.

Unold's 16:13 was good for top honors against West. He was followed to the wire by teammate Cretal who placed third. Bradshaw and Discher were fifth and sixth respectively and Jim Green 10th against West.

Unold launched his senior year with an easy victory over his counterparts from Adrian. He toured the three-mile course in 15:51. In that meet Bradshaw was the No. 5 finisher and Cretal hit the wire sixth, followed by Randy Discher (8th) and Tim O'Neill (12).

Glenn has a big week ahead: Schoolcraft on Saturday, then meeting always ready Wayne Memorial on Tuesday (Sept. 21) and Garden City East (Sept. 23), the defending Northwest Suburban Conference champ.

Ironically, Glenn defeated East three times last year but couldn't salvage the title.

"They're one of the top teams in the area this year," said Szukaitis. "They're going to be tough to beat."

Meanwhile, Wayne and Coach Doug Garrett launched their season Tuesday night against Edsel Ford and will head into the Schoolcraft Invitational with a seasoned team. "We have four runners back off of last year's team," said Garrett, "and we should be respectable."

Rick Blaha, the Great Lakes 8 Conference's two-mile champ, and Kevin Miller, an All-Area candidate last year, will lead the Zebra harriers this year.

Miller and Blaha will team with Ron Mason, a junior who earned the most dedicated award for cross country and track a year ago, and Tim Quaintance, the No. 1 sophomore of a year ago, to form the Wayne nucleus.

Quaintance's older brother, Stan, has returned to the lineup after watching the action from the sidelines a year ago.

Garrett sees the Great Lakes title run "as a two-team affair".

"Fordson has the manpower again," Garrett said, "and the title will be decided between the two of us — there are no other teams in the league that can touch us."

In his fifth season as head coach, Garrett's teams have compiled a fantastic 44-4 won-lost record.

Another title year?

A.J. Williams (at left), owner of the Wayne Americans, and Jim Poplin, Wayne Community Center supervisor, look over the hockey contract signed by player Steve Morris while team manager Ray Fraser (standing behind Poplin) look on. The Wayne skaters captured the Great Lakes "A" Hockey League title and will be attempting for a repeat performance when the season opens next month.

Americans are set to defend hockey title

Seeking a repeat of their Great Lakes Junior "A" Division championship of a year ago, the Wayne Americans are whipping into shape for the 1976 campaign.

In their inaugural season in the division, the Wayne team captured its divisional title.

This season though the Americans have advanced into the Great Lakes "A" division.

Great Lakes was one of only two Junior "A" Amateur hockey leagues in the U.S. last season, and an outstanding debut, grabbing off 26 full or partial college scholarships.

League President, Don Randle predicts that in two years the league will have reached a level of competitiveness equal to Canadian Tier I Junior hockey.

The Cleveland Barons and the Frazer Highlanders have added to the expansion of Great Lakes by moving their franchise to "A" competition this season.

A. J. Williams, owner of the new "Wayne Americans", is a veteran of the hockey world.

In 1971 he formed a team called the Southfield Chiefs in hopes of establishing an ice hockey team for highly skilled young men from 16-19 years of age.

In 1975 the Chiefs moved their franchise to "A", becoming a member of the G.L.J.H.L. The Wayne Americans being the affiliated team that year captured the state title in the "B" division.

Recently, Williams made the final decision to move the 'A' franchise to Wayne Americans.

This season affiliated team is the Berkley Bruins.

Williams said, "that 'A' hockey is very important to these young men. It gives them the opportunity to continue their development as skilled hockey players, and provides them the greatest exposure for collegiate and professional hockey careers."

Why the move to Wayne? A.J. says "The fans are No. 1. The facilities are the best available. Wayne is a growing community in the sports world and its people know hockey. I am not only impressed with the Americans having captured the state crown their first year in the league, but in the enthusiasm displayed by the fans. I feel good about Wayne."

Jim Kokowicz, Americans general manager and coach commented: "We're proud of our team. Once you see one of our games you'll be 'hooked'. We hope everyone will enjoy the games with us this season."

Getting the season underway the club announced last Mon. night at a General meeting the following

AUTO FACTS

By Chester Kosin

A moment's hesitation in the engine when you step on the gas can sometimes be traced directly to the accelerator pump in the carburetor. Remove the air cleaner and, with the engine off, operate the throttle while you peer down the throat of the carburetor. Each time you move the throttle linkage, you should see a fine but vigorous stream of gasoline squirt across the opening. If the stream seems weak, have the carburetor accelerator pump checked, and the stroke adjusted.

If you own a foreign car, make it a habit to visit KOSIN'S AUTO PARTS, 26831 Michigan, Inkster, for quality parts and accessories! We specialize in all kinds of parts for Datsun, Toyota, Fiat, Opel, Volkswagen, and many others. We also carry a complete inventory of parts for domestic cars. Expert mechanics in our machine shop do valve work, turn brake drums, and even rebuild engines. Call us at 563-3894. We are open daily from 8 A.M. until 8 P.M., and on Saturdays until 5 P.M. Bank Americard and Master Charge are honored.

HANDY HINT: A steady thumping noise can mean that there is a fire about to blow out. Look for a bulge, usually in the side wall.

Studio is 2nd

The final run for Studio was scored in the third inning on a St. Clair Shores error after a double by Vicki Pier and a single by Annette Belanger for her third RBI of the game. Tight defense the rest of the way gave Studio the 5-3 win.

In game No. 4, Studio scored 14 times as Dearborn, Plymouth Welding Supply had 8. Studio scored four runs in the first inning on two singles by Becky Brown and Robyn Soave, a walk and a home run for Pat Olson.

Studio's offense was led by Winkler's two singles and her grand slam, giving her 4 RBI's. Pat Olson had one single and one home run, Maureen McIntosh collected three singles, while Robyn Soave hit two singles for three RBIs.

In Game No. 5 Studio met with its first defeat by a good Ann Arbor Pacers team in a tight game that ended up Ann Arbor 6 - Studio 5.

In Game No. 6, Studio was pitted against the host team Grand Rapids. Studio jumped off with two runs in the first, gained one more run in the fourth, and two in the six to total up five runs.

Grand Rapids' only run of the game came in the third inning. The Studio attack was led by Annette Belanger with a home run, a single and two RBIs.

Nancy Baumann smashed two big singles and drove in two big runs. The girls played a fine game with a very tight defense and some timely hitting, giving them the victory they needed to get another shot at the Ann Arbor Pacers and the State Championship.

The seventh and final game saw a tired Studio team lose 7 to 1 by the State Champs. Studio scored one run in the first but Ann Arbor jumped right back to top with two runs in the bottom of the first. They increased the lead with three runs in the third, two in the fifth keeping Studio down 7-1 at the end of the game.

Studio's lone run came on a home run by short stop Vicki Pier.

It was a fine Studio effort, but the team tired and could not muster the runs they needed against a fine Ann Arbor team.

Studio ended an excellent season as it earned the City of Westland League Champs, City of Westland Playoff Champs, and finally Michigan Recreation and Parks Association Class "A" State Runner-up.

Low maintenance of home gives owner leisure time

Does it seem as if the home you own really owns you? That it runs your life and eats up your leisure time by putting demands on you for maintenance of one sort or another?

Rest assured that the no-maintenance home hasn't yet been invented. Every home needs a certain amount of work to keep it from looking neglected and uncared for. But you can plan for minimum maintenance of your home grounds, at least, by choosing landscape materials, including plants, that require a minimum of care and upkeep.

According to Joe Cox, extension specialist in landscape architecture at Michigan State University, the first step in landscaping is to design a master plan with specific areas for public access, private relaxation, children's play, work and storage.

The next step is to choose materials with which to carry out the master plan.

"The choices you make at this point determine whether you'll spend your weekends tending your home grounds or enjoying them," he said.

Let's say you want to put in a patio. You've picked the location and you're ready to start building. You've narrowed your choices to poured concrete, brick or a redwood deck.

"Concrete is cheap, relatively easy to handle, long lasting and low maintenance," Cox said. "You can expect it to last 20 to 30 years with very little care. Brick, on the other hand, is harder to put down and may require resetting every few years. It is absorbent, so it stains easily (especially food fats), and it is more expensive than concrete. With a wood deck, you have the potential for rot and insect invasion — not to mention splinters — and you have to either paint or stain it regularly."

Plants in the landscape may require care ranging from minimal to almost constant, Cox noted.

"Here again, planning is the key," he advised. "Know where you want to put a plant, what you want it to do and how much care you're willing to give it to keep it healthy and good looking. For example, for a spot that's four feet high and two feet wide, don't choose a plant that will be six feet tall and four feet wide when it matures. Keeping it confined in that much smaller space will take regular, drastic pruning that may ruin the plant's natural shape."

Choosing plants for specific purposes may require trade-offs of one sort or another, Cox pointed out. To get a privacy hedge in a hurry, for instance, you may have to use shrubs that will require frequent pruning. A tree chosen for quick shade may be prone to damage from wind and ice.

"If it's shade you want, you probably should avoid trees with messy flowers or fruits," he suggested. "Fruit generally means insect problems as well as extra cleanup."

Many plants have special cultural requirements that add up to extra work for you, Cox pointed out. Rhododendrons, for example, require acid soil and special protection to survive Michigan winters. Fruit trees and hybrid roses need regular, frequent spraying to control diseases and insects. Some bulbs and perennials must be dug, divided and replanted every few years; or dug and stored inside over the winter for high quality blossoms.

Lawns generally are high maintenance areas, but you can minimize the work required by using ground covers in hard to maintain areas and by lowering your standards a bit for the rest.

"After all, your lawn doesn't have to look like a golf green," he pointed out. "But if that's the way you want it, you'd better be ready to put in the effort, time and money that will be necessary to establish and maintain it that way."

Don't forget to take into account the cost of equipment you'll need to maintain your landscape, he noted. Can you get by with a push lawn mower, a couple of hand sprayers, some garden tools and a hose? Or do you need a power mower, a tiller, a power sprayer, a built-in irrigation system and a supply of costly chemical fertilizers, weed killers and insecticides?

Measure twice, avoid waste

Embarking on a do-it-yourself carpentry project for the home landscape? Then take this advice from Michigan State University Extension landscape architecture specialist Joe Cox: measure twice and cut once.

"There are literally dozens of money-saving, do-it-yourself jobs the homeowner can do to improve the home and property," Cox pointed out. "But a few hasty mistakes can wipe out your savings."

Projects for the home carpenter could range from replacing a rickety step to adding or enlarging a porch to building a wraparound deck to serve two doors. Get the family's input on location, shape, materials and design, Cox suggested; and do your thinking on paper so good ideas don't get lost. Changes are much easier, too, he noted, if you make them in the pencil and paper stage rather than in the hammer and nail part of the project.

With scale drawings and accurate measurements and the help of your local home building supplies dealer, you can quickly get an idea of how much your home improvement will cost. Then comes the building of it.

"If you're building a deck, porch or landing, consider below frost-line cement block supports for the wood to rest on," Cox suggested. "Even preservative-treated lumber will rot eventually if it is placed in contact with the soil. Using concrete or cement blocks as a base prolongs the life of the lumber and extends the usefulness of your investment of time and money."

Don't toss away those leftover lumber scraps until you've investigated their possibilities, Cox urged. A planter, a bird feeder, a shelf for a hanging basket, a mail box post, or a house number sign — these are only some of the possible uses.

Use sprays

Tomato plants producing a lot of fruit tend to get rundown and become susceptible to several plant diseases. Michigan State University horticulturists advise protecting tomato plants during late summer with fungicide sprays to prevent defoliation.

The plants need their leaves to make food for the plants so they can produce good fruit, the experts explain. The leaves also shade the fruit and so prevent sunscald injury.

Keep herb garden growing indoors

The end of the summer doesn't have to mean the end of your home herb garden. You can have fresh herbs all winter, if you pot up plants now.

According to J. Lee Taylor, a horticulturist, mint, chives, parsley, sweet marjoram and basil are the easiest herbs to grow indoors. He advises starting your windowsill herb garden with new plants. Take 4- to 6-inch cuttings and root them in moist sand or vermiculite, or divide old plants into several smaller ones.

Pot in a standard houseplant potting mix and place the containers in a south window, he advised. Water when the soil surface feels dry.

Fertilize herbs grown as houseplants only if you are cutting them frequently, he suggested. Too much nitrogen may cause herbs to lose their characteristic flavor and aroma.

If you can't get cuttings of your favorite herbs, you can try growing them from seed, Taylor noted. Many herbs are slow to germinate, however, and some are very susceptible to damping-off, a fungus disease of seedlings. Most people tend to have better luck with herbs indoors if they start with growing plants.

Some people still don't have a Wyandotte Savings Bank Checking Account!

(CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?)

For over 100 years, Wyandotte Savings Bank has been protecting people's money. And for most of those years, we have offered checking accounts to provide an easy, safe, and efficient way for people to use their money. In fact, WSB offers four different kinds of checking accounts, just so there will be one just right for everyone.

Personal Check Plan . . . for people who write only a few checks a month and don't wish to be bothered with a required minimum balance.

Diamond Cheque . . . requires a minimum monthly balance yet saves money because there are no service charges.

Senior Citizen Checking . . . available free-of-charge to anyone of retirement age. (Direct deposit of Social Security and retirement checks available too.)

Business Checking Accounts . . . offering a wide variety of check forms and backed by the extensive experience you want in a bank that handles your commercial account.

Even with all this variety, experience, and protection (including FDIC insurance up to $40,000 per depositor), some people still don't have a WSB Checking Account.

If you know people who don't have a WSB Checking Account, have them drop by any office of Wyandotte Savings Bank, and we'll remedy the situation . . . fast! You can bank on us.
